BRITISH BLOCK UP OSTEND

Sink Cruiser at Mouth of Harbor, Bottling Up German U-Boats

By FLOYD MacGRIFF,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, May 10.—British naval forces carried out another brilliant and successful coup last night. They dashed down upon the Belgian coast and barred the sea-way to the important German submarine base at Ostend by sinking the cruiser Vindictive across the entrance to the harbor. The operation was similar to that at Zeebrugge on April 22.

The Vindictive, which had been the leader in the Zeebrugge raid and was badly shot up there, was filled with concrete and sunk last night between the piers at the outlet of the Ostend Harbor.

The enterprise was successful from every point of view. The only loss sustained by the British was a motor boat, while the casualties were light.

The blockading of the Ostend and Zeebrugge harbors will go down in the history of the war as two of the most daring exploits of the navies. At both submarine bases the Germans have batteries of long range naval guns and keep a keen lookout for attacking parties.

Following is the official report of the Admiralty on the operation:

> The operation designed to close the ports of Ostend and Zeebrugge was successfully com-

Berlin Reports New Air Raid on the Mole at Zeebrugge

By International News Service.

Berlin, May 10. — "On Thursday afternoon and evening strong enemy air squadrons carried out bombing attacks against the mole at Zeebrugge without causing damage of military importance," the War Office announced today. "As a result of the bombs, a Zeebrugge church was damaged, and three Belgians were killed and four wounded. Three hostile airplanes were shot down."

The mole at Zeebrugge is a long sea wall built to keep the shifting sand from filling up the harbor.

GERMANS BEATEN BY FRENCH

Important Gain at Grivesnes; Prisoners and Much Material Taken; British Advance

By International News Service.

London, May 10.—"Following an intense, but brief bombardment on Thursday, the French seized the park at Grivesnes, including important terrain that the Germans had occupied," the French War Office announced today.

"We captured prisoners, including four officers, and much material. We maintained our new position and organized it in spite of German counter-attacks.

"On the right bank of the Ailette River, in the Champagne district, near Massiges, and north of Rheims, as well as in Lorraine wood we carried out several minor operations and repulsed raids, capturing thirty-six prisoners, one an officer."

Grivesnes is about five miles northwest of Montdidier and fourteen miles southeast of Amiens. American troops are holding part of the line south of Grivesnes.

A small portion of a front line trench northwest of Albert, which had been gained by the Germans in an attack yesterday morning, was recaptured by the British during the evening by a counter attack, the British War Office announced today. A few prisoners were captured.

Hostile artillery was active throughout the night in the Somme and Ancre valleys (Picardy front), and also at some points on Lys-Flanders battlefront.

It is now believed that the German offensive, expected between Albert and Amiens, will be aimed at St. Pol, with the evident design of reducing the Arras salient, said a dispatch from Paris today, quoting the military expert of the Echo de Paris.

A renewal of the German drive is due to begin today or tomorrow, it was reported. Advices from Rotterdam said that the Germans were massing at three points on the Flanders and Amiens salients.

It is expected that there will be a resumption of the offensive in Italy before long. There are only a few Germans on the southwestern front, but the Austro-Hungarian staff is controlled by Prussians.

450,000 SHARES SOLD IN HOUR ON EXCHANGE

New York, May 10.—Trading in stocks during the forenoon was the largest noted so far on this movement, the transactions in the first hour amounting to around 450,000 shares, with a large part of the buying covering of shorts. Steel common, after selling at 106⅝, rose to 109½ followed by a reaction of one point. The other steel industrials made gains of around two points, many of them selling at the highest prices so far this year. Tobacco Products moved up 1½ to 61 and there was persistent buying of New York Central, which rose nearly two points to 73½. The initial transactions in the Liberty 4¼s were made made at 99.10, from which the price dropped to 98.50 on large transactions. It was said that selling came from out of town banks.

TRAIN GOES THROUGH TRESTLE

Ten Others Injured in Accident on Southern Railroad Near Camp Jackson, S. C.

By International News Service.

Columbia, S. C., May 10.—Seven soldiers were killed and ten injured, three of them it is believed fatally, when a train loaded with soldiers went through a trestle near Camp Jackson today.

Two passenger coaches were splintered. The men were being transferred from Camp Jackson to Greenville and were members of the 321st Infantry.

The officers will not give out any names until a thorough canvass of the correct list is made. The wreck was on the Southern Railway.

The train was running slowly when the trestle, probably weakened by recent rains, gave way. The light coaches were crushed like pasteboard.

The men being transferred were almost entirely North and South Carolinans.

TWENTY KILLED, MANY INJURED BY CYCLONE

By International News Service.

Chicago, May 10.—Twenty known dead, hundreds injured and property damage estimated into the hundreds of thousands came in the wake of the cyclone which swept across Iowa, Illinois and northern Indiana yesterday afternoon and last night.

Iowa was the heaviest hit by the storm, the known dead in the Hawkeye State being 11. Seven are reported killed in central Illinois and one in Chicago.

Wires leading to the stricken district in Iowa are down and it is feared when more reports come in of the storm's work, the death list will be larger. Relief parties have been hurried to the devastated districts.

The dead as reported today are as follows: Newt Hampton, Ia., 4; Nasuva, Ia., 2; Clamar, Ia., 4; Plainfield, Ia., 1; Touton, Ill., 2; Franklin, Ill., 3; Kewanee, Ill., 2; Chicago, 1; Hammond, 1.

From Des Moines, Ia., came reports that several small villages were wiped out. Republic, Penarock and Plainfield are cut off from the outside world and the fate of the people and towns is unknown. Northwest of New Hampton about fifty farmsteads were destroyed.

They went to Fort Slocum, N. Y. The men furnished under this call will be credited against the next net quota.

Boston's quota in the mobilization which began today is 240. The soldiers-elect were given heartfelt farewells at their local board assembling points and the South Station.

FRENCH FLIER GETS 6 HUN PLANES IN DAY

By International News Service.

Paris, May 10.—"During the course of two patrols yesterday Lieutenant Fonck brought down six German airplanes," the War Office reported today in a statement on aviation. "The first two were downed in ten seconds and a third five minutes later. The remaining three were brought down during the second patrol."

HUNS MASSED ON SOMME

London, May 10.—The Germans have brought up a considerable number of new divisions to both the Flanders and Somme fronts during the past week. It is expected the enemy will continue his attacks for the Flanders ridge and the high ground between the Somme and Lys rivers to enable him to continue his drive towards Amiens. The main enemy reserve is massed on the Somme.

RITISH PREMIER SWEEPS OPPOSITION AWAY IN COMMONS VICTORY

SHOWS MAURICE HIMSELF GAVE FIGURES HE SAID WERE INCORRECT

By International News Service.

London, May 10.—General Frederick B. Maurice is to be tried by a court martial. His accusations against Premier Lloyd George and Chancellor Bonar Law, that they had made misstatements about the size of the British overseas forces and the doings of the Inter-Allied War Council at Versailles, render him liable to charges of insubordination, untruthfulness and conduct unbecoming an officer.

Lloyd George won a smashing victory—one of the greatest triumphs of his political career—in the House of Commons.

187 MAJORITY AGAINST MOTION.

Striking straight from the shoulder, the Premier threw his accuser, General Maurice, completely on the defensive. Thn he challenged the House to decide—"here and now"—to demonstrate by a vote whether it wanted him to continue in the Premiership or preferred to have the opposition leader, ex-Premier Asquith, resume the reins of government.

He staked the whole question on Asquith's own motion for an inquiry into Maurice's charges. The House's answer was:

Against the motion—293, for the motion—106.

Majority against—187.

The Irish Nationalists, by unanimous consent, remained absent from the session.

LONDON PRESS ELATED.

"There is a certain faction whose motto is 'Win the war, but destroy Premier Lloyd George at any cost,'" said the Daily Express today in commenting upon the outcome of the debate in Commons yesterday, when former Premier Asquith's motion for a committee to investigate General Maurice's charges was voted down by 293 to 106.

"Any general is good enough to beat the government with," the Daily Express continued. "Today it is General Maurice. Tomorrow it may be General Mahon."

The Morning Post said:

"Because the House of Commons is satisfied with Premier Lloyd George's statement, it doesn't follow that the people are. In this matter the Commons has ceased to represent the nation. We can conceive of nothing worse for the army morale than that the Premier, as in his Paris speech, should condemn the strategy of generals."

The Daily Telegraph says that this latest attack upon the government has come to an ignominious collapse. It continues:

"A FUTILE FIASCO."

"If it comes to preparing fiascos, this last must be considered the most futile."

The Daily News, one of the papers that has been hostile to the Premier, says that "a plain accusation has been spirited away by a trick of legerdemain."

The Times (a Northcliffe paper) says:

"We shall still believe in the patriotism of General Maurice's views, but it seems charitable now to assume that he has been made the instrument of abler and less honorable men. As for the question of fact, the Prime Minister's case was overwhelming."

Considered as a whole, the press took a diversified view, but most of the influential London papers came strongly to the support of the Premier and the government.

The magnitude of the government's victory was shown by the size of the majority against the Asquith motion—187 votes.

The Paris Matin in commenting upon the victory which Premier Lloyd George won yesterday in the British House of Commons, said today:

"The conspiracy hatched against him will not last long. He may be congratulated, but this is no time for military and parliamentary intrigues. Nothing must be done to diminish the authority of the British government."

Huns Poison Letters of Captives; English Girl Killed

By International News Service.

London, May 10.—The latest device of the Germans against noncombatants has just been revealed here by the death of a girl from poison. Charles Humphrey, father of the girl, testified before the coroner that his daughter met her death by licking the flap of a letter sent by her brother from a German prison camp.

"The flap was turned down when the letter arrived," said Humphrey. "Elizabeth moistened it and at once became dizzy. A physician diagnosed the girl's death as having been caused by an irritant poison.

U-Boat Activities Curbed by Blocking of Channel Bases

By FRANK CHARLTON.
International News Service Cable Editor.

In the continued absence of any big scale operations on the battle fronts, interest swung away from the fighting zones today to a brilliant enterprise carried out by the British navy which has resulted in the bottling up of the German submarine base at Ostend.

The old cruiser Vindictive, filled with concrete, was sunk across the entrance to the Ostend harbor on the Belgian coast and now both Ostend and Zeebrugge (the two submarine bases on the Belgian coast) have been rendered ineffective as submarine retreats.

TWO PORTS ARE CLOSED.

The closing of these ports is bound to have important effect in curbing German U-boat operations, for Germans will be compelled to use Heligoland as a base, which is far distant from the usual submarine hunting fields and which has already been rendered fairly ineffective by huge mine fields which the British have planted in the North Sea.

British operations against Ostend met with none of the untoward features that had marked the double raid against Ostend and Zeebrugge on the night of April 22-23. Only one motor launch was lost last night, while the British casualties were very light.

While Bombardments have continued along the southern end of the Picardy battle front, the British carried out a local operation northwest of Albert (in the northern zone) which gave them possession of an advanced trench which the Germans had occupied Thursday morning.

There have been no actions of any consequence on the Flanders front although the Germans continue to mass troops. All the barracks in Brussels are reported to be crammed with German reserves ready to go to the front when Von Hindenburg resumes his drive.

THREATEN THREE POINTS.

The Germans are reported to be concentrating at three points on the Flanders and Amiens front. There is still no decisive indication as to where the offensive will be renewed, although there is a disposition on the part of French military writers to believe that it will come between Albert and Amiens, and that it will be launched in the general direction of St. Pol, with a view to reducing the Arras salient.

(Albert is about seventeen miles northeast of Amiens.)

This was the fifty-first day of the German offensive, but for nearly three weeks the Germans have been comparatively inactive.

BRITISH BOTTLE UP U-BOATS AT OSTEND

pleted last night, when the obsolete cruiser H. M. S. Vindictive was sunk between the piers across the entrance to the Ostend harbor. Since the attack on Zeebrugge on April 23 the Vindictive has been filled with concrete and fittd out as a block ship.

Our light force returned to their base with the loss of one motor launch, whiih was damaged and sunk by orders of the vice-admiral to prevent it from falling into the hands of the enemy. Our casualties were light.

Both of German's submarine bases on the Belgian coast are now out of commission.

Not only were two block ships, filled with concrete, sunk across the Zeebrugge harbor, but the mole was cut.

The Vindictive was a light cruiser, displacing 7,500 tons. The Vindictive was built in 1895 and normally carried a complement of 450 men. Her armament consisted of ten 6-inch guns, eight 3-inch guns, one 3-pounder and five machine guns. She was badly battered by German shell fire while taking part in the previous raid at Zeebrugge.

Washington Hails Ostend Exploit as Splendid Naval Feat

By International News Service.

Washington, May 10. — Naval officials here were highly elated today when they learned of the latest exploit of the British navy. The bottling up of the German submarine base at Ostend, following so closely as it did the sealing up of the Zeebrugge base, was conceded to be one of the most spectacular features of the war. It was pointed out also that in addition to strategic results that had been obtained, the psychological effect upon Germany would of necessity be marked.

The British navy, which has had but few opportunities to demonstrate its prowess, has been discounted continually by Germany, and even held up to ridicule. But now that it has asserted itself in two brilliant exploits in less than a fortnight, the effect is certain to be highly discouraging to the enemy.

Naval officials pointed out that the sacrifice of the Vindictive was inconsequential in comparison with the results obtained. While the vessel had a record of "keeping station" at nineteen knots for twelve consecutive hours and was known to be a remarkable craft in a heavy sea, she was one of a class which British authorities later characterized as "uneconomical" and the construction was discontinued.

L Control Bill Is Given Reading in Senate

The bill providing for public control of the Boston Elevated Street Railway, which passed the House by a vote of 130 to 23, was today given a reading without opposition by the Senate.

The bill was at once referred to the Ways and Means Committee of the Senate.

As the members of this committee "sat in" unofficially with the House Ways and Means Committee and heard the arguments for and against the details of the bill it is expected that they will report the bill back to the Senate without much delay.

It is said that the bill will come up for action in the Senate next week.

All of the conspirators were arrested and sixty-three bombs were seized. The coup was planned by the same element that disorganized the recent elections.

Major Paes was proclaimed president of Portugal at a municipal ball. He reviewed the troops, afterwards receiving a big ovation.

1336 DRAFTEES ENTRAINING FOR FORT SLOCUM

The young men leaving today were escorted to the stations by city and town officials, patriotic societies and G. A. R. veterans, the processions headed by bands. Gifts of sweaters and other necessities were made in many cases, and the custom of sending the men away with no regrets was adhered to.

Two groups of draftees went from East Boston early today. From District No. 1 nine young men left the district headquarters in the Branch Library Building, accompanied by Thomas F. Rice of the exemption board. A large crowd had collected outside the building, and as the men marched out the crowd cheered.

From the second district fifteen men went away from the Court House, accompanied by W. C. Maguire of the district board. These men were given a noisy sendoff by the firemen in the adjacent fire station, by the children of the vocational school and a large crowd of friends. The two parties boarded cars for Boston and left the South Station for New York at 9.35 a. m.

Division 24, of Hyde Park, sent eight men to Fort Slocum today, under the direction of Henry M. Dean of the district board. There was no demonstration as the men left on an early train for the South Station.

FORTY GO FROM LYNN.

Lynn's forty drafted men were given a reception in the City Hall before boarding the train. Mayor Creamer and City Council members greeted the men, and there was a band concert on the lawn. Each man was given a sweater knitted by girls of the Whiting School, and Mrs. O. W. Brown of Newhall street made a personal gift to each man of fifty cigarettes and a small silk American flag.

The drafted men were escorted to the station by the Mayor and Councilmen, fifty Grand Army men, a hundred Boy Scouts and a group of relatives.

The greatest enthusiasm was aroused at Dover by the exploit, especially when the men who had participated in it returned. The firing was distinctly heard at Dover, beginning at 1 o'clock and lasting for two hours.

Cannonading had been heard on the preceding night. The night was clear and the stars shone brilliantly, although there was a slight haze seaward.

Vice-Admiral Keyes, who directed the previous raid, had charge of last night's operations.

OVER 300,000 BE REJECTED.

The provost marshal-general, basing his calculation on the experience in recent levies, figures that approximately 364,838 men will be rejected in the next draft because of physical disqualifications.

The cancellation by the House yesterday of its amendment to the draft quota legislation which would have given credit for volunteers allowed the provost marshal-general to go ahead with the plan announced today.

The day of the next draft has not yet been set. It will not be until the differences between the House and Senate over the exemption of divinity and medical students have been threshed out.

SOUTH BOSTON MEN.

Relatives and friends bade farewell to twenty-four draftees from South Boston. Those from District 8 were: John J. Barrett, John W. Cahill, Patrick J. Keeley, Patrick Foley, George H. Bishop, W. J. Dwyer, Jeremiah A. Crowley, George R. Henchett, Joseph S. Richardson, Henry DeMarke, Joseph Kilbert, James C. Sullivan, Coleman Clancy, Patrick Griffin. Nine from District 9 were: Robert Allender, Thomas F. Morgan, Grover F. Fitzgerald, Andrew Flynn, James P. Muldoon, William J. Tarkey, Raymond T. Williams, Edmund Wachenheim and Joseph J. Sargent.

16 FROM CHELSEA.

Sixteen went from Chelsea's two draft districts. They were accompanied to the stationed by Chairmen George T. Brady and Joseph M. Curley of their local boards.

The Salem and Peabody-Danvers districts furnished fourteen. The Salem men marched from the district headquarters to the depot in a procession headed by Mayor Dennis J. Sullivan and the city council. Both groups of men were given service kits containing razors and other useful articles.

BOSTON WOMAN'S DEMAND FOR PROBE CLEARS RED CROSS NAM

"STORIES" SCORED BY U.S. JUDGE

Dr. Culbertson Helps to Check Slanderers of Brave War Nurses

Vindication of the character of Red Cross war nurses through the finding of a Federal Grand Jury at New York was hailed with deepest satisfaction today in Boston and New England.

The Grand Jury investigation resulted from a request made by Dr. Emma B. Culbertson of No. 33 Newbury street, senior surgeon of the New England Hospital for Women and Children, to President Henry McCracken of Vassar College, Dr. Culberson's alma mater, that an inquiry be made.

Dr. Culbertson explained today that she wished a stop put to "that kind of stories about our nurses," and that she was satisfied now that official denial had been secured.

GIVE WARNING TO ALL.

It was felt today that tremendous good had been accomplished by the investigation, not only in clearing the skirts of the nursing branch of the Red Cross, but also in administering stern warning to the public at large against indiscriminate spreading of false reports concerning women and girls engaged in war activities.

The Federal Grand Jury, which returned a presentment to Federal Judge Augustus H. Hand at New York, said that, if the statements reported about the Red Cross nurses were true, it would be the Grand Jury's duty to call them to the attention of the military authorities and that, if they were untrue, utterance of them would constitute violation of the espionage law.

Judge Hand emphasized the evil of such reports by saying:

"Reports of this sort tend to discourage young women going abroad as nurses. The American people have been very tolerant, but the time has come when persons who make such statements without the least foundation for them, who pick up such information from the curb and circulate them not knowing that they are true or false, will be brought before the Grand Jury.

"It is deliberate and unfriendly propaganda and is reprehensible and disgraceful.

"Men are today sacrificing their lives and women going to the front to serve as nurses. Mothers are parting from their sons and wives from their husbands, and the spreading of such propaganda is discouraging.

MUST END "WILD RUMORS."

"People should not make baseless statements or spread wild rumors. If they do it in the future they may expect to be indicted, tried, and, upon conviction, to be severely punished."

Dr. Culbertson makes the following statement:

"I felt that the matter was so serious that something should be done promptly. Therefore I mentioned the situation to President McCracken of Vassar, and suggested that an investigation be put under way.

"My feeling was that if the stories were untrue a great amount of harm was being done by them and the nurses injured. If, on the other hand, they were true, it was high time something was done to protect American young women abroad.

GAVE EVIDENCE TO JURY.

"When I broached the matter to President McCracken he wired at once to Washington, and an investigation was ordered by the officials there. The result was an official denial of the alleged immorality on the part of the nurses.

"I appeared as a witness before the Grand Jury in New York, and gave the names of some persons from whom I had heard these reports. They had reached high quarters and were circulated by persons in important positions.

"I am very glad indeed that the official report shows them to have been unfounded."

TWO INJURED IN AUTO COLLISION ON BRIDGE

As a result of an automobile collision on the Boston side of the Harvard bridge early today, Adolph Rowler, 407 Columbus avenue, and William F. Walsh of the same address were taken to the City Hospital suffering from serious injuries.

Two women, who were with them in the automobile driven by Rowler, Mary Chesley of No. 602 Tremont street and Margaret Fay of No. 985 Harrison avenue, were uninjured.

ADELE ROWLAND IS SUED BY WOMAN FOR $100,000

Miss Adele Rowland, defendant in Mrs. Tearle's action for $100,000. She alleges alienation of affections.

New York, May 10—Mrs. Roberta Menges Corwin Hill Tearle, who before her marriage to Conway Tearle, an actor, was sued for $25,000 for alienating his affections, has brought suit on a similar charge for $100,000 against Adele Rowland.

Mrs. Tearle obtained a divorce following a raid on a Broadway hotel. Testimony presented to John Gilroy, as referee, disclosed that Tearle and Miss Rowland were found in a room in the hotel. Miss Rowland said they were simply reading a play together.

Mrs. Tearle gave no explanation of the reason for valuing her former husband's affections at $75,000 more than his first wife, Mrs. Josephine Park Tearle, did in charging the recent wife with being a love pirate.

MEDALS FOR U. S. RED CROSS NURSES

Springfield Girl Among Those Honored by Britain for Conspicuous Bravery

By International News Service

Washington, May 10.—Two American Red Cross nurses have been recommended for the British military medal as a recognition of their courageous conduct under fire, it was announced today. They are Miss Beatrice May MacDonald of New York and Miss Eva Jean Parmelee of Springfield, Mass.

Miss MacDonald, head nurse from the General Presbyterian Hospital, while on duty as a surgical nurse in an evacuation station was injured by a bomb from a German airplane. A fragment of the shell entered her right cheek, and in its course penetrated the pupil of one eye, destroying the sight. During the attack before receiving her injuries she had displayed remarkable courage and continued her work in the operating room until struck.

Miss Parmelee was wounded by the explosion of a bomb from an enemy airplane. Though wounded and badly shocked, she courageously stuck to her post, caring for the wounded.

In a letter addressed to each of the courageous women, General Pershing says:

"The commander-in-chief wishes to express appreciation of the exceptional conduct that you displayed upon this occasion. Such bravery on the part of one of our compatriots, calls forth our deepest admiration and is a source of inspiration to us all."

Dr. Moscow is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bention Moscow, of No. 33 Angel street, Dorchester. While a freshman in the Tufts Dental School she became acquainted with Dr. Aplebaum of No. 43 Greenock street, Dorchester. He was then a senior in the Tufts Medical School.

After graduation Dr. Applebaum became a member of the Boston City Hospital staff, while Miss Moscow became a dentist. Dr. Applebaum was commissioned in the Naval Reserve shortly after we entered the war.

LORD ABERDEEN STOPS RAISING IRISH FUND

Abandons Entertainments After Talking With New York District Attorney

New York, May 10.—The Marquis of Aberdeen and Temair, formerly Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and Governor-General of Canada, has promised District Attorney Swann he will stop making collections for the Women's National Health Association of Ireland. He had been asked by the District Attorney to call and explain why Charlie Chaplin and others were billed at an entertainment given in Carnegie Hall on Wednesday afternoon. The film star did not appear, neither did the Anzace nor the "Blue Devils."

Lord Aberdeen was accompanied to the District Attorney's office by Charles Robert Kearney, New York manager of the Women's National Health Association of Ireland. Frank Dilnot, correspondent of the London Chronicle, was also present, but "only to lend moral support to the Marquis."

JUDGE SWANN QUESTIONS.

Judge Swann and Alfred J. Tally, an assistant, conducted the examination of Lord Aberdeen. According to Mr. Talley, Lord Aberdeen said:

"Lady Aberdeen and I have been in America since October, 1915, in the interests of the health association. During this time I think we have collected about $40,000. The accounts are kept by Lady Aberdeen, who has neither bookkeeper nor secretary. When any money is collected it is turned over to her. She has accounts with the Bankers' Trust Company, J. P. Morgan, banks of New York city and the Federal Trust Company of Boston.

"Since coming to America I know of two sums of money being sent to the other side. One was for $2,500 to Scotland, the other $1,000 to Ireland. We propose before leaving America to consult with J. C. Heyer, of the Federal Trust Comanpy in Boston, over expenses. There is no idea of a fifty-fifty proposition. The expenses of administration and the living expenses of myself and Lady Aberdeen will be paid, probably. I do not think it will take more than 15 per cent. of the amount collected.

MET CHARLIE CHAPLIN.

"Sunday afternoon while Lady Aberdeen and I were in the Ritz-Carlton Chaplin came in, and I asked him to help us at our benefit, which was then billed under the name of The Child Welfare Association, and was to be given in the Metropolitan Opera House. Mr. Chaplin said he would help and agreed to cancel reservation for a trip to California. It developed that on Monday, according to the terms of Chaplin's contract, he could not appear in any theatre. The entertainment was then billed for Carnegie Hall. Carl Diener, stage director, and our only paid employe, was responsible for billing the Anzacs and "Blue Devils."

Judge Swann suggested that inasmuch as the health association was established long before the war, it was not essentially a wartime charity. Lord Aberdeen explained that when the war broke out the scope of the original organization was broadened so as to help in preserving babies' lives throughout the British Isles.

WIL RETURN TO ENGLAND.

Diener said he obtained eight weeks' booking on the Keith circuit for "My Lady's Garden," in which Lady Aberdeen appeared with Irish maids. The act, he said, brought in $1,000 a week. It appeared at several theatres about New York city and was finally billed for the Palace. When the act arrived there, he said, Lady Aberdeen was perturbed at finding Evelyn Nesbit billed as headliner, and refused to appear. That ended the engagement. In addition to the sum paid by the theatrical managers, Diener said, young women were sent through the audiences to sell stickers which resembled thrift stamps. The money was all turned over to Lady Aberdeen, he said.

At the conclusion of the interview Lord Aberdeen said he and Lady Aberdeen would leave for England soon.

HARVARD MEN WILL TRAIN AT CAMP DEVENS

The Harvard men who were assigned recently by the War Department to the officers' training school at Camp Grant, Ill., will not go there, for new orders have come countermanding the former one. Instead they will go to Camp Devens with other detachments of men from the Harvard Reserve Officers' Training Corps. Men to be trained at Camp Grant must have had four years' military experience, which the Harvard men lack.

YANKEES EAGER FOR RENEWED HUN ATTACK

"They Lose Punch When Outside Trenches," Say Americans Fighting With French

By BERT FORD.
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

With the American Army on the French Battle Front, May 8 (Delayed)—Standing shoulder to shoulder with the French on the Picardy front, the Americans are tensely awaiting the new Boche offensive. A return to pleasant weather, coupled with military observations, indicates early attacks.

The men say attacks cannot come too quickly for them. They are in the pink of condition and tough as leather. The French are full of admiration, but this feeling is mutual. An American officer remarked:

"The Heinies that clash against the section of the line held by the Americans will find tough going."

The fact that the Germans are screened only by hastily constructed trenches and shallow pits is hailed as an advantage for the Americans. The Americans are indifferent to the fact that they are at the same disadvantage as the Germans.

LOSE COURAGE IN THE OPEN.

The Americans say the Huns lose punch and courage when they are out of their trenches. The Yankees call them "sewer fighters."

Both sides are crouched ready for a spring across the narrow strip of freshly tilled ground between the hastily laced wire protecting the front lines.

Americans are billeted in picturesque villages behind the front lines, living in stables and tumbled-down houses.

The chow guns (portable cooking stoves) are kept under cover and the bread is stacked about in corners like cord wood.

ADROIT CAMOUFLAGE.

The men's equipment is adroitly concealed in various places by camouflage. A majority of the civilian population was driven out by shell fire, but there are a few grandmothers in white bonnets and blue aprons and children unconscious of danger. Old women are veritable mothers to the Americans, many of whom now speak French well.

The wonderful thrift and courage of the French peasants is shown by their plowing and planting the land within two and one-half miles of the greatest battlefields in history. Children and old women are provided with gas masks, for they are far within the gas zone.

The cannonading is almost continuous, sounding like a gigantic burst of fireworks. It is deafening day and night, but the civilians are reluctant to abndon their homes and are flirting with death by staying.

Nature is now unfolding her Summer beauties.

FENWAY PARK MILITARY MASS IS POSTPONED

Cardinal O'Connell will preside at a military mass to be held Sunday morning, May 26, at Fenway Park, in memory of deceased sailors and soldiers of the United States. It was originally planned to hold the mass May 19, but it has been postponed one week.

The service will be under the auspices of the Army and Navy Union and the celebrant will be Rt. Rev. Mgr. John B. Peterson, D. D., rector of St. John's Theological School, Brighton. The Rev. James S. Hayes of the Mission Church, Roxbury, will probably preach the sermon.

It is expected that more than 50,000 persons will be present, including members of various military, naval and veteran organizations. General John J. Sullivan will be chief marshal of a parade which will form at Commonwealth and Massachusetts avenues at 10:15 a. m., to march to the park. Major Edward J. Sampson will be chief of staff.

Many home guard companies will appear in line. Among those who are working on plans for the mass are James J. Phelan, Richard F. Teeling, Major P. F. O'Keefe and Major Paul Butler.

390 STARS IN FLAG ON COLUMBIA ROAD

Former Governor Walsh will be the principal speaker at a patriotic rally at Upham's Corner, Dorchester, on Saturday evening when a huge service flag will be flung across Columbia road from the Dorchester Trust Company to the Masonic building. The flag will contain 390 stars, the number of men in the army and navy from Wards 11 and 17, and ten of the stars will be golden, representing the casualties suffered among these men. William H. O'Brien will preside and among the speakers will be Mrs. J. B. Baxter of No. 6 Cushing terrace, chairman of the committee.

CARDINAL APPEALS FOR SEMINARY FUNDS

Cardinal O'Connell has issued a pastoral letter in which he calls attention to the annual custom of collecting for the Seminary in Brighton on Pentecost Sunday, May 19. The war and the high cost of living have made it extremely difficult to maintain the institution, the cardinal writes, and he urges generous donations to support it in this time of stress.

NEWTON GIVES UP SCHOOLS TO U.S. ARMY

Technical and Vocational Buildings for Use in Training Drafted Men

All the buildings and resources of Newton Technical High School and Newton Vocational High School will be taken over by the government this Summer to train 500 drafted men for technical work in connection with army necessities.

Blacksmithing, welding, automobile construction and repairing, and the operation of gas engines will be among the subjects taught. There will be sixteen instructors, eight of whom are now in the school force, and an administrative head appointed by the War Department.

Newton, it is believed, is the first city to have its schools accepted by the government for this work, but it is understood that others in Worcester and Springfield will be taken over soon.

The cost of training the men, who are all to come from draft quotas, will be about $56,000, which the city of Newton will pay. It will later be reimbursed by the government. The city will spend $25,000 at once, and will seek permission from the Legislature to raise the money needed.

The course of study will begin about June 10, when 250 drafted men will arrive. They will study eight weeks, and then another 250 will come. The shops at the school will be in use for instruction in the practical side of the subjects to be taught. The school gymnasium will be converted into barracks and a mess hall will be constructed near the other buildings.

It is possible that there may be several other courses for drafted men, but only two are contemplated for the present. The usual school work will not be interfered with, because the soldiers will fill in the usual vacation period.

He served at the Mexican border. Private Fred McPartland is with the Canadian forces, and Sergeant Bernard J. McPartland is with the Regular Army in Texas. Private William McPartland is with the Coast Artillery at Fort Strong. He is only eighteen years old. Mr. and Mrs. McPartland have four other children.

SMALL MILL WRECKED IN ACTON EXPLOSION

Maynard, May 10.—The small wheel mill at the American Powder Company's Acton plant, just over the town line, was destroyed early today by the explosion of 250 pounds of powder which was being dried. Although 250 pounds is considered a "light shot," from explosion standpoint, it was enough to demolish the light structure of the wheel mill. The other buildings scattered around the grounds were shaken. On account of the small quantity of powder in the wheel mill the loss, officials said, was comparatively light.

MAYOR TO OUST PATROLMAN AT REVERE

Hall So Notifies Dowd, Who Hires Counsel to Contest Decision

Mayor Alfred S. Hall of Revere today notified Patrolman Joseph W. Dowd of the Revere police force that he intended to dismiss him on the grounds of conduct detrimental to discipline and unbecoming an officer. He informed Dowd that he was willing to grant a hearing on the matter.

For two weeks Dowd, who is married and has three children, has been under suspension and his comrades in the department have assessed themselves $2.20 each to pay his salary during that time. Dowd declares that he will fight to keep his position and the Massachusetts Police Relief Association has offered him the service of its counsel. Dowd has already engaged Judge Samuel S. Cutler of the Chelsea court as counsel.

Just before he was suspended Patrolman Dowd acted as chairman of a committee of policemen who presented a schedule of pay for extra work policing the beach resorts. Chief Dwyer maintained that the police had no right to fix prices for such duty. The mayor says that this has nothing to do with Dowd's suspension, thereby contradicting charges made by Dowd's friends.

The mayor and chief say that Dowd did not patrol his beat properly and used improper language to a superior officer.

ANOTHER DEATH SENTENCE FOR U.S. SOLDIER

Court-martial Action in France to Be Reviewed in Capital; Of Different Nature

By International News Service.

Washington, May 10.—The death sentence has been passed upon another member of the American expeditionary forces by a general court-martial in France, it became known today.

Beyond admitting this to be a fact and that the records of the case had reached the judge advocate-general's office, the War Department would give no details as to the rank of the condemned person or the offense of which he was convicted.

An officer who has seen the papers said, however, that it was of a different character than those that have preceded it, one of which was for an attack on a girl, two for sleeping on post and two for disobedience of orders.

The fact that General Pershing has sent this case to Washington would indicate that he has interpreted President Wilson's order in regard to review of courts-martial involving the death penalty as applying also to the overseas forces and will continue to send all such cases to Washington.

McADOO REVENUE PLAN DIVIDES CONGRESS

Members Believe Sudden Action on New Tax Legislation Might Hit Business

By International News Service.

Washington, May 10.—Congress was split wide open this afternoon over Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo's demand for the immediate enactment of new revenue legislation adding billions to America's tax budget, to meet the extraordinary estimates presented by the War Department for next year's army expenses.

Representative Kitchin, majority leader of the House, conferred with Senator Simmons, chairman of the Finance Committee, and told him the sentiment of the House was opposed to carrying out Mr. McAdoo's proposal at this time.

The Finance Committee also met, and informally decided to make an effort to dissuade Mr. McAdoo from pressing his demand at the present session.

Members of the committee took the view that additional revenue legislation at this time would create unnecessary business disturbance, and that other means could be found to tide the government's finances over until the next session.

A special session of Congress to consider revenue legislation immediately after the November election was also suggested by leaders as a way around Mr. McAdoo's plan.

NEW DRAFT RULE CALLS FARMERS TO COLORS

Biddeford, Me., May 10.—Orders received by the Saco and Biddeford exemption board from Washington have rescinded the arrangement placing farmers in deferred classes under the draft law. As a consequence farmers will be called out in the next draft quota from this section. The order will mean a considerable change of status among drafted men locally, for many farmers are registered and under the old plan they were given deferred classification.

"Arrangements have been made by the Postmaster General for sending personal welfare inquiries and messages between persons in the United States and persons in enemy countries and in territory occupied by the enemy.

"The inquiries and messages can be sent only through the Red Cross in the manner and on the blank prescribed for the purpose, and must not be sent direct between individuals of accepted postoffices from individuals. MONARCHY IN UKRAINE IS THE KAISER'S PLAN

Washington, May 10. — Germany aims to establish a monarchy in Ukraine, according to information from Russia reaching here through French circles today. "Whatever the value of this information," says the French dispatch, "it can be stated that the popular republic of the Ukraine is now dead."

This statement is based upon a report of the manner in which the German military authorities in Ukraine have concentrated all authority in one hetman.

AUTOISTS WHO FAILED TO STOP GETS 30 DAYS

Stanislaw Barbarcewitz, 38, of D street, and Joseph Waluka, 42 of Fourth street, South Boston, were given 30 days in the house of correction for failure to stop after hitting a boy with their automobile. They appeared in the Dorchester court before Judge Churchhill, who discharged them on another complaint, that of operating a machine without having registration cards. The car hit a baby carriage and overturned it, also striking three year old Raymond Crowley, who was standing beside the carriage.

DOG BILL KILLED AND BURIED IN THE HOUSE

The dog bill was finally killed by the House of Representatives today. Representative Beaman of Leverett, urging the House to reconsider the action by which it had defeated the measure, said that if the bill were revived he would offer an amendment "to regulate" the dog. Representative John L. Donovan of Boston warned the House that if it reconsidered he would move an amendment to include rats, bedbugs and mosquitoes. The House refused to reconsider. The vote was 64 to 34.

ONCE WEALTHY MINER SAVED FROM POOR GRAVE

New York, May 10.—Rated twenty years ago as one of the wealthiest mine owners in Canada, Neil McDonald, who died in a Bowery lodging house here, will receive a decent burial. Mr. Harrison Personally Guarantees
A $5 to $10 SAVING ON
MEN'S SUITS

Mr. Harrison, proprietor of the S. H. Harrison Co., goes on record as personally guaranteeing a saving of from $5 to $10 on every suit he sells this season. That is, each suit is priced from $5 to $10 lower than the same style and quality suit is marked in other retail stores. We are in a position to give these savings to our customers because we bought clothing and furnishings heavily in advance a year ago, when we foresaw the high prices of this year. We did not get caught like the average clothing dealer who did not protect his trade against the increased cost of clothing. Our customers easily save $5 to $10. People can make a dollar go farther in Harrison's Economy Clothes store than anywhere else.

3 CAPTAINS OF OLD 9TH ARE PROMOTED

Captain William J. McCarthy, Company B, 3d Battalion, 101st Infantry; Captain Christopher F. Lee, Company I, 3d Battalion, 101st Infantry, and Captain James F. Hickey, Company L, 1st Battalion, 101st Infantry, have been promoted to be majors, according to news from France.

All three have seen long service in the old Ninth Regiment, M. N. G., each having passed through the various grades up to their present positions.

Captain McCarthy has commanded Company B of Boston since July 13, 1915, Captain Lee has commanded Company I of Boston since April 12, 1912, and Captain Hickey has commanded Company L of Natick since July, 1910.

All three companies have been under fire on the Toul front and all have suffered losses, and on every occasion, judging from reports received in Boston, have rendered a good account of themselves.

It has been well known that both Captains McCarthy and Hickey have been in command of the First and Third battalions since Major William J. Casey came home and Major John J. Barry was detailed away from the regiment.

CARNIVAL TO CLOSE DEVENS FUND DRIVE

Mildred Scribner, one of Mrs. Butler's May Festival Girls, who is to appear at the benefit of the Camp Devens Baseball Fund at the Arena tomorrow night.

Only two days remain in which to purchase tickets for the monster carnival and pageant at the Boston Arena on Saturday night in aid of the Boston AMERICAN'S Camp Devens Baseball Fund.

This occasion gives the people of Boston the double opportunity of witnessing a very unusual spectacle and of helping out the fund which is designed to make life more bearable for the men of the 76th Division at Camp Devens. The fund is being raised for the purpose of laying out a baseball diamond and building a grand stand at the cantonments, where the men now have no such facilities for sport, and it was the idea of Major-General Harry L. Hodges that the AMERICAN take the matter up and put it before the people of New England.

The response has been generous in the extreme and already more than $4,000 has been subscribed. The benefit on Saturday night will definitely close up the drive and it is hoped that a substantial sum will be realized. W. Percy Edgar, Lilla Viles Wyman and a dozen others have been working for a month training the 1,200 children who will appear in the performance in their dances and parts.

MANY TO PARTICIPATE.

The program includes 600 children from Mrs. W. S. Butler's May festival, 300 Boy Scouts in a new march song, 200 Girl Scouts, solos by Mme. Wilhelmina Wright Calvert, soprano, and John Mogan, basso, formerly of the Boston Opera Company. Mme. Calvert will sing the Star Spangled Banner with a chorus of 1,200 children's voices. Mr. Mogan is to sing for the first time the new march song which he has dedicated to the Boy Scouts of America, entitled "The Boy Scouts of the U. S. A." The Camp Devens band will furnish the music.

This event, which is to be one of the biggest indoor performances ever held in Boston, has the patronage of Boston society and all the best names in town are included in the list of those who have approved of the event. Aisle commanders have been secured from the ranks of the exclusive Vincent Club.

The State, City, Army and Navy boxes will be filled with representatives and special sections of the house have been set aside for the Elks, the Shriners, the Vincent Club, and, also, for the Edison employes, Filene employes and others.

WHERE TICKETS CAN BE BOUGHT

Tickets are now on sale at Herrick's, Copley square; the Adams House news stand; Wright & Ditson's, and the Boston AMERICAN office.

Individual subscriptions to the baseball fund continue to come in. Today a check for $10 was sent to the fund by Mr. Ralph Griffin of the firm of George L. Griffin & Son.

"I am a great believer in the Boston AMERICAN'S fund," he wrote. "Anything we can do to help out the boys at Ayer is a thing well done. I hope the fund will go away over the top."

ALL SUBSCRIPTIONS SHOULD BE SENT TO LIEUTENANT ROBERT C. DEMING AT CAMP DEVENS.

Lieutenant Deming is athletic officer at Ayer and has been especially appointed by General Hodges as custodian of this fund.

CONTINENTAL CLOTHING OPENS SECOND STORE

The Continental Clothing Company, which has been established in business in Boston for nearly half a century, has opened a second store to keep pace with its constantly growing business and to satisfy the wants of its many customers.

The young men's department is on the second floor. A large assortment of fancy suits in styles that meet varied tastes are to be found on the third floor. WHEN GIRLS ARE BOYS; THAT IS, BELL BOYS

By MARIE DUNBAR.

You called for ice water.

Just as your accumulated grouch had reached its limit and your headache the roaring stage, the water arrived. You grabbed for it and—

There she stood just as if girl bell hops were as common as strawberries in June. Oh yes, girls, urged by the war, were playing a role heretofore enacted by boys only.

Between gulps of ice water and the headache throbs you meekly and inquiringly say to the young creature: "Something new, huh? Girl bell hops. Pretty high class idea. How do you like it?"

Then for the 999th time the young bell hop outlines the merits and disadvantages of her position.

"Here, girl, page Mr. Whitney Smith Algonquin," calls the clerk.

PAGED IN SOPRANO.

A nimble-footed alert girl bell hop springs from her post near the desk and dashes through the rooms.

"Mr. Algonquin, call for Mr. Algonquin," shrieks the high soprano.

"Here girl, show this lady up to see Mrs. Jones," is the next command. And so it goes all day.

It's "girl here and girl there, and girl everywhere."

This is as things might be, but whether they will be or not is still in the interrogative form in Boston.

Positions for women now are largely a matter of the creative war times.

As men have stepped from their desks, from the elevators, from the farms, women have moved forward to take their positions. A few years ago the idea of girl elevator operators, women and girls working in railroad shops, farmerettes, women street car conductors and women girl messengers would have been looked at askance.

NOVELTY WEARS AWAY.

The novelty has soon worn off, however, and nobody notices women in these positions unless to commend them for their work or a few truly inquisitive ones to ask about their work. But all in all the industrial world wags along just the same with women at the helm.

But girl bell-hops—that certainly is extending the line for girl and women employes.

Leading hotel men of Boston are apt to frown on the idea.

The girl bell-hop suggestion is due to die in its infancy if the hotel men are unanimous in their opinion with that expressed by Edward C. Fogg, manager of Copley-Plaza Hotel and president of the Boston Hotel Men's Association.

"The hotel men of Boston have not taken this matter up for consideration as far as I know," stated Mr. Fogg when interviewed on the subject. "Of course it is very hard to secure labor now, but the position of bell hop for a girl seems a very awkward and embarrassing one. I do not think the idea a feasible one.

NONE IN NEW YORK.

"There are a great many positions that a girl can fill just as well as a man around a hotel, as running an elevator, especially where the elevators are run by electricity. As far as I know, there are no girl bell hops in New York."

Though the hotel men frown on the bell hop vocation for girls and women they acknowledge that the scarcity of labor supply may force the girl bell hop to the front.

The question of bell hops, of course, is closer to the business of the hotel men than of anyone else, and they quickly see as Mr. Fogg states "the awkward positions that would arise," and it is probable that this latest innovation in the labor field will be curtailed for women at the present time.

Don't be surprised, however, if the next time you enter a hotel a swarm of beautiful maidens swoop down on you. If one dives for your travelling bag, another makes a whirlwind dash for your coat—let them have them.

Don't labor under the disillusion that you have suddenly become popular or that you have been surrounded by a group of playful nymphs, but—

Just act as if you had always been accustomed to girl bell hops. Smiles are sure to accompany the courtesy of thanks.

File Suit to Void Naturalization of Dr. Von Tilling

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., May 10.—Papers were filed by Federal Attorney Caffey in New York in a suit to void the naturalization of Dr. Johannes Herman Martin Von Tilling, who was served at his home here with a copy of the complaint. The papers allege:

"He did not purpose to, and has not, supported the Constitution of the United States; he stated to many persons that the sinking of the Lusitania was justified; that the boat was laden with bullets, and that the lives of the German people that the bullets were intended for were more important than the lives of the Americans lost by the sinking of the ship."

Dr. Von Tilling became a naturalized citizen nine years ago. He declared that he was born in Russia, and that he was bewildered at the proceeding against him.

TOURISTS MUST NOW CLIMB MT. WASHINGTON

Admirers of the panorama from the summit of Mount Washington, New England's highest elevation, will sigh for the inspiring sights of other years upon learning that the Mount Washington Railroad will not run the coming season. More than a score of the men who operated this railroad have been called to the service of Uncle Sam, and it has been thought unwise to trust the operation of the road to inexperienced hands. Of the crew of thirty necessary to the operation of the railroad, but three are now available.

NUXATED IRON

NUXATED IRON

"Say Doctor This Prescription Works Like Magic."

Physician Says Nuxated Iron Quickly Puts Astonishing Strength and Energy into the Veins of Men and Brings Roses to the Cheeks of Nervous, Run-Down Women.

Ask the first hundred strong, healthy people you meet to what they owe their strength and see how many reply "Nuxated Iron." Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly Physician of Bellevue Hospital, (Outdoor Dept.) New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "Thousands of people suffer from iron deficiency, but do not know what to take. There is nothing like organic iron—Nuxated Iron to quickly enrich the blood, make beautiful, healthy women, and strong, vigorous iron men. To make absolutely sure that my patients get real organic iron and not some form of the metallic variety, I always prescribe Nuxated Iron in its original packages. Nuxated Iron will increase the strength and endurance of weak, nervous run-down folks in two weeks time, in many instances."

MANUFACTURERS' NOTE: Nuxated Iron recommended above by Dr. Sullivan can be obtained from any good druggist, with or without a physician's prescription on an absolute guarantee of success or money refunded.

MOTHERS' DAY ECHOED FROM BATTLE LINES

Gen. Pershing Urges Our Boys to Write Home on Sunday; Special Services Planned

Greater Boston will join in paying a universal tribute to the mothers on Sunday—Mothers' Day.

Flowers, gifts, letters, telegrams and special music and sermons in the churches have become traditional in keeping the memory of mothers fresh.

If your mother is living, write to her, send her flowers, or a telegram, a letter, a gift. Let her know that you think of her. Wear a white carnation, the emblem of the day, in your buttonhole.

Mothers' Day will carry a deeper significance than ever before this year. It has extended itself to the far battle lines. General Pershing has requested that all his men write to their mothers on Sunday and send them a message of cheer and affection.

Boston churches have made it a custom to commemorate the memory of the mothers who have passed away and of the living mothers with special sermons. This custom will be followed out this year.

Florists are preparing for an extra rush. Past years have taught them the heavy demand for flowers.

Mothers' Day was founded in May, 1907, by Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia. In 1914 Congress set aside Mothers' Day and adopted a resolution requesting the President annually to issue a proclamation designating the day.

The second Sunday in May is the special day for mothers.

ROOSEVELT TO BACK UP EDITORIAL ON BURLESON

Oyster Bay, N. Y., May 10.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will answer Postmaster-General Burleson's recent request that the colonel prove statements made by him in an editorial, to the effect that favoritism had been shown in the treatment of newspapers under the espionage act.

"My statement will, I think, bear out everything I have said," Colonel Roosevelt said.

"LOVE MATCH," AS GIRL OF 18 WEDS RICH MAN, 86

Katie (Wolf) Hart, Brooklyn, N. Y., manicurist who is on honeymoon with wealthy jeweler sixty-eight years her senior. The bride's sister defends the marriage as a "love match."

New York, May 10.—The marriage of James Harvey Hart, the eighty-six-year-old Brooklyn jeweler, and Katie Wolf, a manicure of only eighteen years, was upheld by the bride's sister today as a "love match."

It was reported that relatives of the octogenarian bridegroom proposed to take steps to have the marriage annulled. But this report failed of confirmation today.

The couple are now on their honeymoon trip, which may take them around the world. Mr. Hart is rich. He is said to have promised his bride that he would take her on a wedding tour to Japan.

The bride is a winsome blonde. She was employed as manicure in Joseph Appolo's barber shop on Broadway, Brooklyn. Mr. Hart was a regular customer, not only of the barber line but also at the manicure table.

According to the bride's sister, he proposed marriage a month ago, was rejected, but finally won despite the discrepancy in ages.

SENATORS ARE FORMING WAR COUNCIL

Chamberlain Resolve Would Give Broad Power to Military Affairs Committee

By ROBERT B. SMITH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, May 10.—Congress today discovered a way around President Wilson's objections to a "congressional committee on the conduct of the war."

The functions of such a body, which the President declared in the early stages of the war would prove embarrassing to him, are to be performed by the Senate Military Affairs Committee, headed by Senator Chamberlain of Oregon.

Measures to strengthen the committee to make it a "committee on the conduct of the war," in effect were ready for final action today. The Committee on Auditing and Expenditures was expected to make a favorable report on Senator Chamberlain's resolution giving the Military Affairs Committee broad powers to investigate and to sit continuously throughout the war even when Congress is in recess.

WOULD HAVE GREAT POWER.

The resolution would authorize the committee to require the attendance of witnesses by subpoena, to administer oaths, to demand papers and documents of any department of the government, to employ agents and assistants and incur any expense, including traveling expenses, it may find necessary.

Administration forces stood ready to demand the inclusion of an amendment to prevent collision between the committee and the Department of Justice investigating the aircraft situation.

The Democratic steering committee anticipated prompt confirmation by the Senate of its action of yesterday in adding two new members to the Military Affairs Committee.

The recommended increase will give the military committee a membership of 19 Senators, making it the largest and most powerfully constituted in the upper house. Senator Hoke Smith, of Georgia, who wants the army raised as soon as possible to five million, has been selected for one of the new assignments, while Senator Knox, of Pennsylvania, formerly Secretary of State, and another "large army man" is slated for the other position.

ALL STUDENTS OF WAR.

Among others on the committee are Senator Hiram W. Johnson of California, Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, Senator Weeks of Massachusetts, Senator Reed of Missouri, Senator Wadsworth of New York, Senator Warren of Wyoming, Senator Thomas of Colorado and Senator Frelinghuysen of New Jersey.

All of these men have been selected because of their close attention to army affairs and their knowledge of matters connected with the War Department.

It is the intention of the committee to appoint a number of sub-committees, each to watch over a particular phase of war work and to keep Congress thoroughly informed of progress made. There will be a sub-committee on aviation, another on artillery, another on the Quartermaster's Corps, another on small arms, including machine guns, and perhaps others, according to the committee's present plans. These sub-committees will be authorized to continue their work after Congress adjourns, if it does adjourn, and to keep in constant touch with the conduct of the war.

FRED W. TIBBETS TO WED BACK BAY GIRL

Fred W. Tibbetts, a well-known former Back Bay restaurateur living at No. 40 Queensbury street, has filed an intention to marry Miss Clara Louise Colyer, twenty-eight, of No. 28 Westland avenue. In his application for a certificate to marry, Tibbetts gives his age as thirty-nine and his occupation as "retired." He states that he is "divorced" and that this is his second marriage. It will be Miss Colyer's first matrimonial venture, according to the papers filed with the city registrar.

SUMMERFIELD'S

GAZING INTO THE FUTURE

MOST people nowadays are not satisfied with their well-being merely for TODAY—in most instances they are solicitous for the future—and this is as it should be. If more people would only consider what they might do toward self-betterment—how much more happiness and contentment there might be in the American Home! A good start in life usually means success—this is true in no better phase than that part of it spent at home. Gazing into the future when one is about to be married necessarily means the serious consideration of a home. Lots of people just going housekeeping know what is necessary to constitute a comfortable home, yet there are many who don't—we know the furniture business and we know what you need and just what you will be able to own to your best advantage.

The word HOME is today taking on a new meaning, it is no longer regarded merely as a place in which to eat and sleep. Now, as never before, have we learned to appreciate the joys of home—the sweet contentment and happiness which radiate in a comfortable home of your own. Postponed pleasures are seldom realized—it is, therefore, often a matter of great concern to us, why it is that a young married couple on the threshold of what should be the most happy, most beautiful and most sacred period of life, wearily spend their days in the cold and cheerless atmosphere of a boarding house.

Because we earnestly wish to see every man and woman settle down in a home of their own, furnished according to their own individual taste, our dignified credit terms have been arranged in such a way that no one need be deprived of the advantages of a comfortable home because of the lack of ready cash. A small payment will deliver any outfit to your home without delay—the balance payable at your convenience. We make no investigations, nor do we ask questions that are likely to embarrass you. Nor do we charge interest for the credit extended, and in case of sickness or loss of employment we gladly suspend payments. If you're thinking of a home we would welcome an opportunity to serve you.

CHAMPION WILL TEACH SOLDIERS TO SWIM

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 10.—Lieutenant George R. Meehan, New England middle-distance swimming champion and hero of the Battery to Sandy Hook swim, was today appointed devision swimming instructor.

Lieutenant Meehan belongs to "Boston's Own" Regiment. He comes from Charlestown and is a former Boston College football star. With Captain Richard F. Nelligan, camp athletic officer, he will have charge of teaching the soldiers in the cantonment how to swim in a new pool that has been laid out at Hell Pond on the edge of the artillery range.

A new order issued here today prohibits officers and enlisted men from loitering about the main or west gates, either inside or outside of the cantonment. It is said that some of the men have been making a practice of lolling about the sides of the main road and passing remarks about visitors and passersby, particularly on Sundays. Major-General Harry F. Hodges has declared that this must cease and the provost guard has been instructed to see that this order is obeyed.

NEW BUILDINGS FOR DRAFT.

Two of the new convalescent barracks recently erected at the base hospital are to be used for the examinations of the new men who are assigned to this cantonment in future drafts. One of the buildings will be devoted to the compilation of the personnel records of new arrivals and will be in the charge of Captain Caleb Warner, division personnel officer, and his assistants.

All of the medical examinations will be conducted in the other buildings under the direction of Lieutenant Colonel William A. Powell, division surgeon. Under the new arrangement all of the new men will receive their mental and physical examinations and receive their first innoculation at practically the same time.

Among the men who came here in the last increment of the draft was Frank S. Roberts of Brunswick, Me., a former captain in the Maine National Guard Coast Artillery Corps. Roberts is now a private in the 15th Company of the Depot Brigade, and is is said he had grounds for deferred classification in the draft, but refused to take advantage of them.

GO TO OFFICERS' CAMP.

Roberts is aiding the officers of his company in the preliminary drilling of his comrades and it was intimated today that he may be sent to the fourth Officers' Training Camp. The names of all the candidates selected to attend the new officers' training camp are expected to be made public on Monday.

First Lieutenant Frederick L. Conover, division gas defence officer, has been promoted to the rank of captain and will continue in his present duties.

CITY GETS 350 CHAIRS LOANED BY CURLEY

Three hundred and fifty chairs loaned by former Mayor Curley to the Congregation Adath Jeshurun last August were today returned by order of the officials of that institution to the Parkman bandstand enclosure on Boston Common. The delay in returning the chairs, it was stated, was caused by the sickness and death in the family of the janitor of the synagogue on Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury.

Nathan Pinanski, president of the Synagogue Association, in a letter to Chairman John R. Murphy of the Boston Finance Commission, states that prior to the Jewish holiday in 1917, it became necessary for the congregation to obtain chairs, as it had done on previous occasions, for the members attending the services in Brunswick Hall, which is part of the synagogue building.

"Mayor Curle gave me an order for 350 chairs," wrote Pinanski, "and I turned the chairs over to the synagogue janitor.

"Subsequently the janitor caused teams to be sent for the chairs, the congregation paying the teaming charges. The janitor was instructed then by me to return the borrowed chairs to the city immediately after the close of the holiday services.

"Before he was able to carry out the order the janitor fell ill; then came more sickness in the family and finally a daughter died. Through some inadvertence on the part of the janitor, the bulk of the chairs still remained in the synagogue cellar. Directly after reading reports in the newspapers, I instructed that the chairs be returned at once."

MESSENGER BOYS IN NEW MILITARY OUTFIT

You couldn't touch the Western Union messenger boy in Boston today with a ten-foot pole.

He had on his new military "unie" for the first time.

The new uniform is forestry green in color and non-messenger boys are green with envy.

One result of the appearance of the Boston messengers in military garb was a rush of boyhood upon the Western Union offices for jobs. It was the lure of the "unie," no doubt about it.

The Boston offices of the Western Union Telegraph Company maintain a corps of 350 messengers. Nearly all donned the forestry green outfit today, discarding the old familiar blue uniform.

The new suit is cut on military lines.

PETERS NON-COMMITTAL ON PAYROLL CUTTING

Mayor Peters today announced that he had not decided yet on any new appointments. Neither would he declare himself as to whether he was going to drop any more employes from the city payroll. From day to day his office is besieged with ward leaders anxious to save employes slated for dismissal from the city service.

WIDOW WANTS $100,000 FOR LOST LOVE

A $100,000 breach or promise suit has been filed by Mrs. Lillian Bradley, a concert singer of New York, against Harry E. Robinson of Boston, son of Wallace F. Robinson, a philanthropist and vice-president of the United Shoe Machinery Company.

The plaintiff, who is 28 years old, is said to be a very attractive blond. She is a divorcee and has a daughter 12 years old.

Robinson is 47 years old and heir to his father's wealth, which is reported to be about $5,000,000. He is a prominent Boston clubman.

In her affidavit, sent on by her New York attorneys to Joseph Lebowich, her Boston lawyer, Mrs. Bradley describes club dinners in Boston, hotel dinners in New York and long meetings during which Robinson painted the picture of the brilliant future he planned for his bride; the fine automobile she selected in anticipation of long rides through New England villages, and more illusions which, she says, proved to be only day-dreams.

CHILD WAITED IN JOY.

Her child, the mother asserts, lived in ecstacies as she thought of the nice big playroom she was to have in her new papa's beautiful Boston home.

Mrs. Bradley recites that she met Robinson in New York on March 17, 1917, while she was engaged as a singer at the Majestic Hotel. From the hour of their meeting he seemed infatuated and showered her with gifts and attentions. They had dinner at the Biltmore and after that there were many luncheon engagements, theatre parties and visits between New York and Boston.

She says that Robinson's courtship was of a violent order, but she liked that and liked the manly, forceful way in which he did everything. When she visited in Boston and was in his company, she says, he pointed out to her the Tremont building, where he intended to open a suite of law offices for the big practice he expected; he showed her one of the hospitals his father endowed and sent her pictures of the hospitals to prove his interest in charities.

When she was away from him, in New York, she relates, he telephoned her twice each day and sent her flowers twice each week. Telegrams, telephone calls, special delivery love missives and other tender messages came by the regular mails, she states.

LETTERS NOW UNANSWERED.

Mrs. Bradley declares the honeymoon was set for June, just after she left the hospital where she was under treatment in New York. She adds that during her illness she was showered with every attention which would indicate an ardent wooer, but when she was ready to leave the hospital and expected to meet her intended husband she received only his regrets that business would require his attention in Boston.

There was no answer to a letter she wrote soon after, she avers, nor have there been any other letters. She alleges she suffered the pangs of disappointment and found it embarrassing to explain to the friends she had confided in why she postponed her honeymoon from June.

Mrs. Bradley says that once

"I fink I'll take a Frift Stamp"

THE STORY is going the rounds that a little boy, who was led into a store the other day by his mother to have some refreshments, was led by patriotic ardor, after looking eagerly around, to reply when asked what he wanted, "I fink I'll take a Frift Stamp."

We are not advocating the cutting out of ice cream and candy or clothes for kiddies, but we are commending the youngster's patriotism, and we do rise to remark, that there are none of us who can't buy a little less than we used to and put the balance into THRIFT STAMPS.

A friend of ours tells us that her little boy makes sharp bargains with her these days for the errands and odd jobs he does, and insists on getting his pay in Thrift Stamps.

We think all patriotic mothers and fathers should get their children interested in Thrift Stamps, not alone to help in the War, but because thrift is a good habit that will grow on the children and help form good character later.

DEMOCRACY — BOSTON, FRIDAY, MAY 10, 1918. — LIBERTY

TWO-DAYS' HIKE FOR THE 301ST ENGINEERS

Officers to Work Out Several Problems During Camp at Ashburnham

By WILLIAM FLYNN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, May 10.—The 301st Engineers, under the temporary command of Major J. Edward Cassidy, will be the first regiment at this cantonment to start the extended hikes. The entire regiment will leave here on Monday morning and march to Ashburnham. On the way out of the cantonment the men will march past division headquarters, and are expected to be gone until Friday.

The hike to Ashburnham will take two days, and the men will camp en route Monday night. The regiment has been offered the use of the Cobb estate at Ashburnham for a camp site. The estate is owned by a prominent New York man, and it was once the site of a Civil War camp.

During their stay at Ashburnham the officers and men of the regiment intend to work out several engineering problems.

Colonel F. A. Pope, commander of the regiment, who is away from the cantonment on leave, is expected to return on Monday, although it was said today he would not make the trip with his command.

Major Cassidy, who will have charge of the expedition, has one of the most interesting histories of any man in the 76th Division. He has played a prominent part in several Central and South American revolutions and in most cases acted as chief engineer for one side or the other.

COLONEL CROFT A BUSY MAN.

It is officially announced that Lieutenant-Colonel Edward Croft will be in command of the fourth officers' training camp which starts here on May 15, and which is scheduled to continue until Sept. 1. Lieutenant-Colonel Croft is head of the division schools. It was intimated, however, that he may be relieved of this command later, as he already has a man's size job handling the rest of the schools, the personnel of which is constantly changing.

Captain Joseph Sidorowicz of "Boston's Own" will be adjutant of the new camp and the assistant adjutant will be Lieutenant William H. Rumpf, Jr. Both of these officers held similar positions with the third officers' training camp. Major Ralph Lowell, son of President Lowell of Harvard, and Major Benjamin Joy, both of the 304th Infantry, will be in charge of the two infantry battalions and of the 32 other instructors. Six of them are successful graduates of the third officers' training camp and hold the rank of sergeants.

The following is a list of the instructors and their organizations, made public at division headquarters today:

Captains—J. H. Harwood, 303d Field Artillery; A. Kendall, Jr., 302d Infantry; E. A. Leroy, Jr., 303d Infantry; P. A. Merriam, 304th Infantry; D. G. Hunter, 302nd Infantry; J. H. Shaw, divisional trains, and John S. Milliken, surgeon.

LIST OF LIEUTENANTS.

First Lieutenants—A. H. Boardman, 301st Field Artillery; F. B. Wilde, 301st Field Artillery; Wilder Pollard, 302d Field Artillery; J. A. Schweitzer, 304th Infantry; H. C. Nowlin, 151st Depot Brigade; Walter McCormack, 303d Infantry; P. D. Hill, 301st Infantry; Hazen B. Hinman, 304th Infantry; Thomas Yess, 151st Depot Brigade; F. B. Sampson, 303d Infantry, and E. A. Winsor, 151st Depot Brigade.

Second Lieutenants—George Lovering, 303d Field Artillery; Wallace A. House, 302d Field Artillery; B. R. Collinge, 151st Depot Brigade; W. G. Thayer, 151st Depot Brigade; E. Sanderson, 151st Depot Brigade, and H. S. Tuck, 151st Depot Brigade.

Sergeants—Walter B. Boewe, 301st Infantry; James L. Cochran, 302d Infantry; James Galliver, 303d Infantry; Henry E. Reeves, 301st Infantry; John B. Richardson, 302d Infantry; R. W. Smith, 304th Infantry; George A. Stevens, 301st Infantry, and George Stewart, Jr., 303d Infantry.

The infantry officers who were taken from the Depot Brigade and other units to drill the colored draftees who came to this cantonment in the first delegation from the South, have been relieved from duty with the 519th and 520th Service Battalions, the negro outfits, and sent back to their former commands. The places of these officers have been taken by engineer officers, some of whom graduated from the Third Engineer Officers' Training Camp at Camp Lee, Petersburg, Va.

According to the officers just relieved, the negroes have been making rapid progress in their training and give every evidence of developing into excellent soldiers.

GREAT HELP TO OFFICERS.

One of the colored draftees in D Company of the 520th Service Battalion is Solomon Martin, who served from 1913 to 1916 as a member of the 25th Infantry at Honolulu. He enlisted at Fort Slocum, N. Y., and held the rank of a corporal when he received his discharge from the regular army. He qualified as a sharpshooter in the regular army and has been a valuable asset to the officers in training the other negroes. Martin's home is in Brooklyn, N. Y., but he registered at Jacksonville, Fla., and was drafted from there.

The cantonment's latest bride is Miss Lydia Winkler of Exeter, N. H., who was married to Private Thomas A. Smith of the same town by the Rev. T. P. McGinn, the post chaplain. Private Smith is a member of the 303d F. A. Private John Nolan of the same outfit was best man, and Miss Helen Hart was bridesmaid.

Ten enlisted men and a civilian chauffeur and three lieutenants narrowly escaped being killed when two automobiles in which they were riding collided near a railroad bridge in Ayer and rolled down over an embankment. The three lieutenants were caught beneath one of the cars, but all escaped with a shaking up. The civilian chauffeur was fined $40 for driving without a license.

EDITORIAL

The junior officers at Camp Devens have reason to ponder over the order issued from division headquarters calling attention to the listless manner in which many of them have been responding to the salutes of enlisted men.

It is necessary for the good of the service that the officers salute with as much dignity and precision as the men. Some of the younger officers have gone so far as to completely ignore salutes when they are riding in automobiles or sidecars, and this practice has become so general as to attract the notice of officials at division headquarters.

Most enlisted men follow the example set by their officers, and unless that example is all that it should be, it is likely to have a bad effect upon the organization as a whole.

RADIO BOYS OUT FOR BIG DANCE TONIGHT

Every Jack on the rollicking ship Radio, anchored at Cambridge in the vicinity of Harvard, has been granted shore leave tonight, and shortly after mess will be seen rolling down to Crescent Gardens, Revere, where the Oscillator is running a complimentary dance for members of the school.

More than 5,000 tickets have been given out and among the officers who have accepted invitations are: Rear Admiral Spencer R. Wood, Captain Rush of the Navy Yard; Captains Marsh and Key and Lieutenant Commander Ayer, head of the school.

WALTHAM AND NEWTON DRAFTEES GO SOUTH

Ten Waltham men are off to Fort Slocum today. They are the city's draft quota due this week. The men met at the Exemption Board headquarters and were given sweaters and other comforts by members of the Waltham Special Aid Society. Newton sends sixteen to the same fort. The draftees met at the courthouse and were addressed by Judge William F. Bacon, chairman of the Exemption Board, and by Mayor Edwin O. Childs.

OPERA STAR ASKS PERMIT TO GO TO ADIRONDACKS

New York, May 10.—Madame Margarete Ober-Arndt, former Metropolitan Opera star, has made application to Federal Marshal McCarthy, through her attorney, for permission to go to Schroon Lake in the Adirondacks for the Summer. It was stated that while her application to return to Germany, made several days ago to the Alien Enemy Bureau, had been refused, she will probably be allowed to go to the mountains.

PITTSFIELD AVIATOR GETS GERMAN AIRPLANE

Pittsfield, May 10.—After bringing down his first German airplane, First Lieutenant Lloyd A. Hamilton of the Royal Flying Corps, who enlisted from this city, and who is a son of the Rev. and Mrs. John A. Hamilton of Burlington, Vt., dedicated his victory to Cadet Charles E. Jones of this city, who was killed in an airplane accident in France on Feb. 15.

INDIAN SAILOR IS CAMOUFLAGE EXPERT

By S. HARRY FERRIS.

Aboard the Receiving Ship at Boston, May 10.—The ship has a camouflage artist. He is Frank Overton Colbert, full-blooded Choctaw Indian.

In common with his ancestors, he has made a study of the phenomena of nature that escape the ordinary man. In particular has he kept an eye upon the different birds, animals and insects, and has noted the methods by which they render themselves inconspicuous in times of danger.

Since his arrival on the ship he has made a special study of the ocean, its color, its banks and the clouds that form a part of the seascape. He has noted the coloring and habits of the seabirds, and has especially studied the ways of the gulls that sweep about the ship.

Colbert is an artist and can paint real pictures. Since his arrival at the ship his sketch book and color box have been his constant companion. He has recorded many secrets that he proposes to use in camouflaging if opportunity shall offer.

Colbert enlisted in the Navy as an apprentice seaman and has risen to the rank of chief petty officer, and his friends think that he is in line for a commission. He comes from one of the leading families of Oklahoma, his grandfather, Frank Colbert, having been a Governor of the old Indian Territory, out of which the State was formed. He is a graduate of A. & M. College in his home State.

It looks as though there would be very little more Sunday baseball for the boys of the ship. The transfer of Maranville, and a number of other former professional players, to duty at the Little Building, will make it difficult to get together a nine that could make a presentable showing.

FINDS FOUR BIG TASKS FOR WOMEN

Principal One Is War-Time Feeding of Men, Says Dr. Anna Howard Shaw

Dr. Anna Howard Shaw of New York, who has been acting as head of the Woman's Committee of the Council of National Defence, at the request of the United States government, is to be one of the speakers at the annual convention of the Massachusetts Woman Suffrage Association [illegible] She will speak on Saturday [illegible] on "Suffrage and the W[illegible]

Dr. Shaw says that after reading the newspapers, she has concluded that there are only four things which are expected of women in the war.

"The first," she went on, "is to furnish the enthusiasm which will send our men to battle. The second is to smile as we watch them go, and to keep the home fires burning when they have gone, whether there's coal for the fires or not.

"The third is to keep business perfectly nor[illegible] to buy some things but not too many things [illegible] to upset the equilibrium of trade by hysterical [illegible] from few others.

"And the fourth thing is to watch the [illegible] bread [illegible] kinds of ingredients that we have never heard of before and then to make the men eat the result."

WAR OPENS MANY POSITIONS TO WOMEN

Demand for Female Workers in All Lines of Endeavor Is Increasing

By ELIZABETH ELLAM.

War has opened many doors, formerly tightly closed and marked "No trespassing. Women keep out," to women and girls, today. Industries that have never employed women are seeking for them. In order that they may keep their works [illegible]

[illegible] ing for her, the farm [illegible] out yearning arms for her, the army is making a niche for her, and the navy has turned over its clerical business to her. And yet—there are many women, who burn and yearn and pine for something to do, who do not know where or how to find it.

Few women there are who can do volunteer work without remuneration, and so we will take up the positions open to women wage-earners first.

400 ENROLLED FOR FARMS.

[illegible] and [illegible] has [illegible] begun. Women have been [illegible] who [illegible] increases [illegible]

The Woman's National Farm and Garden Association, with headquarters at No. 4 Joy street, is enrolling women for the farms. Mrs. Mary Copeland is the secretary in charge of the work, and the requirements are simple. A woman must be at least eighteen years old, strong and willing to work. "Tell them that it is not a summer vacation, but good hard work," cautioned Mrs. Copeland when I told her that I was going to tell the public something of the work. "We want only workers who regard it as a serious proposition. We have time for no others."

CAREFULLY INVESTIGATED.

The living and housing conditions on the farms to which women and girls are sent are carefully investigated before any of the girls are sent out, so that farming promises to be a very safe business for the patriotic girl or woman to engage in. It cannot be classed in the dangerful occupations.

Other remunerative positions for war work are to be found by consulting Miss Lena A. Farrar, executive secretary of the N. E. war work of the Y. W. C. A. with headquarters in the Little Building at the corner of Tremont and Boylston streets.

Here are some of the positions to which the Y. W. C. A. furnishes paid workers. To the forty or fifty hostess houses of the Y. W. C. A. in cantonments throughout the United States. These positions are as waitresses, caretakers and similar situations. Hostess houses are located in or near the cantonments or naval bases.

Then there is a large club work that has developed, and this consists of organizing and developing girls' clubs in communities adjacent to training camps. These are recreational and club activities centers, and trained, salaried workers are being sent there.

Another branch of war work which patriotic women have entered comes under the head of the social morality commission of the War Work Council, and for this 70 women physicians are to be engaged for [illegible] or part-time services. These women lecture on social morality subjects in communities where there are girls and war centres. They talk to the following groups: teachers and mothers, business women, high school girls and to leaders who follow up work when the physician has concluded her service.

The Y. W. C. A. is sending [illegible] workers to France soon at the request of the French government, which has asked the association to take up the housing plan for government clerical workers and workers in the munitions plants. The women who go must be trained in organization work and must speak French. Workers have been sent to Russia and to France, where there are nine huts in connection with base hospitals for nurses. There is always opportunity for the woman who speaks several languages, to act as an interpreter.

These are some of the opportunities for remunerative war work that the Y. W. C. A. offers.

10,000 MAKING MUNITIONS.

Now for other opportunities. The United States Cartridge Company, Lowell, has 10,000 women and girls making munitions and is constantly taking on more. This is one opportunity for direct war work right at the door of Boston. In Som[illegible] ton a munitions factory is about to open in a few weeks and women may secure positions there on war contracts.

In Watertown a number of factories have war contracts that are bringing to the town hundreds of women daily. They are making [illegible] ing, binding army blankets and doing a number of things on government contracts. The pay is so good that the women are conspicuous for their elaborate fur coats, in the Winter time, their ultra-modish shoes, their smart hats and their elaborate coiffures.

Every cantonment in the United States employs girls in the telephone exchanges, and some positions are always available to expert telephone operators. Their living conditions are admirable, and they are most carefully taken care of during their period of war work.

At Charlestown Navy Yard, the yeowoman is so common as to fail to excite any curiosity and she has supplanted the male clerk in the various clerical positions there. Stenographers and clerks for Washington are constantly being advertised for and examinations are conducted every month, at a time and place found in all newspapers.

An increase of from 100 to 300 per cent. in the number of war gardens as compared with 1917 was indicated for the State during the ensuing year, in reports which have been submitted to Assistant Food Administrator A. C. Ratshesky by the county food officers.

DAVID W. GRIFFITH, producer of great war film, "Hearts of the World," which Boston newsboys are to witness as guests of the Advertiser-American.

CAN SEE WHAT LIFE AT FRONT IS LIKE

"Hearts of the World" Will Enable Newsboys to Realize Meaning of War

Hundreds of Boston newsboys will see next Monday night what life on the firing line is like for they will be the guests of the ADVERTISER-AMERICAN at the presentation of the great film masterpiece produced by D. W. Griffith, "Hearts of the World," an absorbing romance of present day history, and history in the making on the battlefields of France.

Most of the newsies are too young to go to France in person, though there's nothing they would like better than to be in the thick of the scrap. Since they are barred for the present the offer by the ADVERTISER-AMERICAN offers a welcome substitute.

SHOWS MEN IN BATTLE.

"Hearts of the World," now playing at the Majestic Theatre, shows Uncle Sam's fighters and the fighting men of the Allies, not merely at drill and at play, but on the battle front in France. The film shows the world war on a scale commensurate with [illegible] of the event itself. Miles of [illegible] destruction upon opposing trenches, thousands, yes hundreds of thousands, of soldiers march, counter-march, go boldly into battle or hold the line against the foe's attack.

The boys will gather at the ADVERTISER-AMERICAN office and march to the theatre, led by a big brass band. They will be admitted free, to special reserved seats, to the three hours of entertainment the film provides.

YEAR AND A HALF AT FRONT.

Mr. Griffith spent eighteen months in Europe making the wonderful scenes for this film wonder. Three times dainty Lillian and Dorothy Gish [illegible] with the other actors of the company, Robert Harron, Ben Alexander, George Siegman and George Fawcett among them—were in deadly peril when the Germans shelled the Allied line with heavy guns.

One wonderful scene shows 250,000 British cavalrymen crossing Vimy Ridge. [illegible] show the battles at [illegible] British [illegible] German spy system in France are exposed.

All in all, it will be a night of nights for the newsboys of the ADVERTISER-AMERICAN, and they are just waiting for it to come.

TO CONTINUE WAR CHEST PLAN IN GREATER LYNN

Notwithstanding the opposition of [illegible] to the continuance of a War Chest Fund the War Chest Association of Greater Lynn will continue its plans for raising funds for various organizations engaged in war work in this manner, said Charles F. Sprague.

Every resident of Lynn, Swampscott, Saugus and Nahant who has an income or who earns wages will be asked to contribute a weekly amount to the fund for the duration of the war. This will distribute the burden equally, and it will be divided among the Red Cross, Red Triangle, Knights of Columbus and Jewish relief campaigns.

TO TRY OUT EIGHT-CENT GASOLINE SUBSTITUTE

Washington, May 10.—Government tests will be made within a few days at Pittsburgh laboratories of a new substitute for gasoline which the inventor [illegible] says can be manufactured for eight cents a gallon.

A quantity of the new combustible was prepared at the laboratory of the Department of the Interior here and sent to the government's Pennsylvania experimental [illegible].

One of the features of the coming Red Cross drive [illegible] will be the reappearance [illegible] the Rev. Hugh Birckhead of [illegible] head was the successor of Dr. Rainsford at St. George's Church in New York, and from there was called to Emmanuel Church, Baltimore.

CAR RUNS DOWN GIRL AFTER STICK OF CANDY

Smith of No. 3 Vinton court, South [illegible] was knocked down and painfully [illegible] by [illegible] car. The [illegible] taken to the Carney Hospital suffering from concussion of the brain. It is thought that she will recover.

The last meeting for the season of the Evangelical Alliance of Greater Boston will be held in the Church of All Nations next Monday at 10.30 a. m. The Rev. Dr. William P. Merrill of the Brick Presbyterian Church, New York city, will be the speaker.

MAN SHOT BY WIFE TOO ILL TO COME TO COURT

On account of the weakened condition of Rosario Macaluso, the trial of his wife Josephine, of No. 12 Chelsea street, East Boston, on a charge of attempting to kill her husband, was continued until May 17 and the woman was released on bail of $2,000. She is charged with having fired a shot from a revolver which lodged in the lung of her husband. He was recently discharged from the hospital.

Here, in by far the longest stretch of windows of any clothing store in New England. In a "picture gallery" extending on three streets to a total of more than 350 feet. Displaying 150 different suits and top coats at a corresponding range of prices, representative of more than 6,000 garments within the store. Spectacular and convincing proof of Morse dominance in vastness of stock, in leadership of style, in quality of materials, in thoroughness of making, in unequalled reasonableness of price.

YOU are invited to attend this extraordinary demonstration of Morse-Made superiority. The short trip to Adams Square is your only "ticket of admission."

And remember, when you read the exaggerated statements now current regarding the worth of clothing made in other parts of the country, that every garment in this superb collection (embracing every desirable all-wool fabric shown anywhere, and at a price range of from $17.50 to $40 and up) has been designed and made in our own workrooms under our own direct and constant supervision, and for style, fit, quality and wear, will challenge comparison with any other leading brand of American clothing.

The New Way to Remove Corns.

Japanese Method—Don't Hurt a Bit

Just a Touch Stops Soreness, Then The Corn or Callous Shrivels and Lifts Off. Try It. Your Feet Will Feel Cool and Fine.

Thanks to a new discovery made from a Japanese Product your foot troubles can be quickly ended.

Ice-Mint, as this new preparation is called, is said to shrivel up hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes so that they can be lifted out easily with the fingers. It's wonderful. Think of it, just a touch of that delightful [illegible] Ice-Mint and real foot [illegible] No matter how [illegible] he will shrivel [illegible] you can lift him out after a few nights' use of Ice-Mint. No pain, not a bit of soreness either when applying it or afterwards, and it doesn't even irritate the skin.

If your feet are inclined to swell or puff, or if you have [illegible] or bleeding toes, it will draw the inflammation out and quickly heal the sore and tender places. It is the real Japanese secret for fine healthy little feet and is greatly appreciated by women who wear high heel shoes and men who have to stand on their feet all day.

No more tired aching or burning feet. No more [illegible] Ice-Mint will make your feet feel [illegible] fine [illegible] Just ask [illegible] for a little Ice-Mint and give your poor suffering tired feet the treat of their lives. There is nothing better, nor nothing just as good.—Advertisement.

In support of Kahn's case his young wife appeared as a witness. "I did not want to leave that man," she testified. "Nor did I want to go with Mr. Goldston. But he was so eloquent, so charming and wrote wonderful letters.

"I have paid the price of my folly."

Goldston wrote in one of his letters to Mrs. Kahn:

Fair, Fat and Fifty

When a man gets along toward middle life, he's apt to find his bread line increasing. He puts on more front, as it were, and while such a condition is not unbecoming to many, there's no denying the fact that it makes clothes buying a somewhat more difficult task. Under these circumstances a man sometimes feels impelled to return to the expensive made-to-measure method, with its numerous delays and uncertain results.

But that's no longer necessary. When this Live Store came to Boston, a new era dawned for men of unusual build and in-between sizes. We know of but few men in Greater Boston that we cannot fit out of our voluminous stock.

But we started out to speak specifically of the man who's too stout for a regular size, but not enough so to take a stout. This is about the only store in town where such a man can get fitted satisfactorily. That is because makes a specialty of in between sizes, and we make a specialty of Kuppenheimer Clothes. No other maker that we ever heard of has developed sufficient accuracy in designing, cutting and tailoring to produce the same results as Kuppenheimer. These stout and semi-stout suits are made of the sturdiest and most dependable fabrics, and are as comfortable as they are perfect fitting and good looking

DICK FLEMING IS LET OUT BY DOUGLAS A. C.

Jack Moore of Chelsea has been appointed official referee of the Douglas A. C. He will succeed Dick Fleming whose work has been unsatisfactory to both the directors and the bulk of the members.

Moore appeared in the Chelsea ring for the first time last night when he alternated as referee with Chester Goodwin at the benefit tendered Johnny Gallant, who, up to two years ago, was one of New England's best lightweights.

Gallant has been ill for some time and more than 1,000 boxing fans turned out to make a success of his benefit. Over a dozen bouts, in which local boys sparred, along with a high class vaudeville show, comprised the show, which netted Johnny quite a tidy sum.

IN CORBETT'S CORNER

by James J. Corbett

This is the fifth of a series of articles which Mr. Corbett has written giving the inside details of the financial side of the Jim Jeffries-Jack Johnson fight at Carson City, Nev. The story comes from Jack Gleason, "The Man Behind," and forms one of the most romantic chapters in pugilism. Many of the details which this series of articles discusses never before have been published. The next chapter will appear tomorrow.

Every fight promoter of prominence in the United States was anxious to submit a bid for the staging of the Jim Jeffries-Jack Johnson fight on July 4, 1910. The world wide interest in the proposed meeting of these two gladiators was sufficient guarantee that the bout would be a big financial success, no matter where it was put on. But not one of the men involved in the promotion end of the pugilistic game ever dreamed that the receipts would reach the stupendous total of more than $270,000.

In November, 1909, the declaration was made that the meeting for the purpose of opening bids and also the signing of the final articles would take place in Hoboken, N. J., in December. Every promoter who had ambitions to stage the bout was requested to submit his bid before that date.

Tom McCarey, Eddie Graney, Hugh McIntosh and Jimmy Coffroth, internationally famous in the pugilistic game, at once turned in their bids.

None publicly stated the amount, but it was common report that their bids approximated $[illegible],000 to $1[illegible]. This very rumor, which was false, scared off the "small fry" promoters.

TEX RICKARD AFTER BATTLE.

Up to that time the record "gate" for a fight in the United States had been $71,000, for the meeting between Terry McGovern and Frank Erne in New York in 1900.

The largest receipts for a heavyweight contest in this country was $66,300, when Jeffries fought Tom Sharkey in New York in 1899.

With these figures as their guide, the small promoters felt certain that the bout between Jeffries and Johnson, great as was the interest in it, would not draw more than $100,000 or $125,000.

And so the talk of a $75,000 purse caused the little fellows to smother their ambitions to stage the contest.

Just about this time Tex Rickard came out of the West with a big roll in his pocket. To the newspaper men who interviewed him he said:

"I am here for the purpose of bidding for the Jeffries-Johnson fight. The money I have with me I mean to put up as a deposit to bind my bid. Just what I will offer I do not know as yet, but I am prepared to go the limit."

JEFF STOOD BY GLEASON.

It was this same Westerner who had startled the pugilistic world in 1906 by putting up a purse of about $34,000 for a fight between Battling Nelson and Joe Gans in Goldfield, Nev.

It was the biggest ever offered for a contest between little men, but the splendid judgment of Rickard was evidenced by the fact that the bout drew a $69,715 gate, leaving Rickard a handsome profit as the reward for his venture.

Rickard, shortly after arriving in New York, tried to get in touch with Jim Jeffries only to find that Jack Gleason was the "man behind." So Rickard hunted up Gleason, introduced himself and explained his mission.

"Perhaps you would like to talk to [illegible]," suggested Gleason.

"I would," answered Rickard.

And then Gleason took Rickard to Jeffries, introduced them and left Rickard alone with Jeff so that Tex could put up his proposition without the handicap of outsiders being present.

But Jeff wasn't keen about talking business with Rickard or anyone else other than Gleason. And so he said to Tex:

"Jack Gleason has the first chance to get this match. If Jack doesn't want it then it is up to the other fellows. But until Jack turns it down he is the man who will have the last chance to bid."

After All, Collection Will Be Taken Up at Sunday's Game

Through the courtesy of President Johnson of the American League, Umpires Silk O'Loughlin and George Moriarty will officiate at the service game on Braves' Field Sunday, between the Camp Devens and Fort Strong.

Last Sunday two National League umpires worked, and President Johnson, in reply to a request from Business Manager Hapgood gladly contributed his arbiters this time.

The game will start at 3 o'clock, with the gates opening at 1 o'clock. A band from Camp Devens will render a military concert program for an hour before the game.

A collection will be taken up, a delegation from the Boy Scouts having volunteered their services. The proceeds will be turned over to Lieutenant Deming, athletic chief at Camp Devens, to be applied to the various war charity funds there.

It is likely that Rube Cram, former Brown twirler, who did so well against the Navy Yard team a week ago will pitch for Camp Devens with Bill Bailey, former St. Louis Browns' left hander, for the Fort Strong delegation.

TOMMY REAGAN AND SACCO IN RETURN GO

Commercial A. C. Card

Main Bout—Young (Sailor) Sacco of East Boston vs. Tommy Reagan of East Boston; twelve rounds.

Semi-Final—Young Goula of Woonsocket, R. I., vs. Dave Powers of Malden; ten rounds.

Second Preliminary—Frank Chaney of Beachmont vs. Freddie Webb of Weymouth; six rounds.

Curtain-Raiser — Young Alger of Roxbury vs. Young Varney of Lawrence; six rounds.

Referee—Larry Conley.
Starting Time—8 o'clock.

By J. P. MURPHY.

East Boston's much-talked-of sectional battle will be renewed at the Commercial A. C. tonight, when Tommy Reagan and Young (Sailor) Sacco clash in the feature bout at twelve rounds.

Few ring melees have developed as much rivalry as the last scrap between this pair, which ended in a draw, and there is every reason to believe that this evening's skirmish will be witnessed by a packed house.

As in their previous meeting, the boys will come in at catchweights. This arrangement gives Sacco a slight pull, but as Reagan possesses other natural advantages, such as height and reach, which Sacco does not enjoy, it is practically even up all around.

Reagan, by the way, takes exception to being referred to as a lightweight. He would have it understood that he seldom scales more than 125, and right now could make that figure if called upon to do so. He claims he will weigh 126 pounds for tonight's bout.

The semi-final will be furnished by Young Goula of Woonsocket, R. I., and Dave Powers of Malden. These boys have already engaged in two exciting mills at the West End club, with Powers gaining the edge both times.

Assistant Matchmaker George Freeman of the Armory A. A., today announced that Tommy Elm of Paterson, N. J., and Johnny Buckley, willing South Boston miller, have been signed to clash in the semi-final to the Ashe-Norfolk set-to, at the Arena next [illegible]day night. They are to make 130 pounds ringside.

Willie [illegible] of Somerville, ex-amateur champion, makes his professional debut in the first of the six-rounders, opposing Bob Ambrose of Cambridge. The other preliminary will bring together Johnny Gray of Chelsea, and Freddie Webb of Weymouth.

Joe is located on a training ship off New York and doesn't seem to have much trouble getting leave of absence to put up a fight now and then.

If Joe ever gets a crack at Benny Leonard he will just about land the title, said the irrepressible Johnston

"The next thing I am going to do is to force Leonard into a match," continued Jimmy "It can be done, but, believe me, it is going to be the biggest task I ever picked out for myself

"I am still insisting Leonard is no longer lightweight. He doesn't want to make weight any more and will be shown up the first time he tries it.

"Welling surely can make 133 in a pinch and 135 is as easy as eating for him"

Jimmie Henigan Is on Scratch in Road Race Tomorrow

With Jimmie Henigan of the Dorchester Club starting from scratch the St. Alphonsus Association's annual road race will get underway tomorrow afternoon. Starting time is 3 o'clock.

This annual distance run has always had the entries of the leading plodders of New England and it is a high-class array that will plod the course this time.

In last year's run Henigan broke the record, and though giving several handicaps defeated Willie Kyronen, New York, who came to the Hub to compete against the popular Mass. runner.

Eddie Starr, who won the race last year, as well as his brother, Jimmie, who finished fourth, will again cover the course. These two boys have been running brilliantly this year and are now occupying the family title in the roads the game formerly held by Jimmie and Tom Henigan.

Another starter will be Arthur V. Roth, formerly of the St. Alphonsus Club, but now located at Camp Devens.

The race is due to pass these points as follows:

Start at St. Alphonsus Association	3.00
Roxbury Crossing	3.03
Huntington and Mass. avenues	3.08
Boylston and Massachusetts avenue	3.13
Beacon street and Commonwealth avenue	3.15

CAPT. LYMAN TO ARRIVE TODAY WITH ELIS

Captain Lyman and his Yale baseball team will pull into Boston this evening and register at the Lenox.

The team is paying its only visit this season to the Hub, the Blue and Crimson of Harvard meeting in the first of their two-game baseball series on Soldiers' Field tomorrow afternoon.

Yale is bringing to town a record of four straight victories, and, on paper, looks set for a fifth. Talcott, Eli pitcher, has been throwing air-tight ball all season, and the Blue has this strong asset to thank for its victories perhaps more than their hitting ability, which so far has proven far from strong

TALCOTT A GOOD ONE.

Talcott shut out Dartmouth, 1 to 0, and beat Cornell, and undefeated team, and Princeton. In none of these games did the Elis show a tendency to larrup the ball with any consistency.

In Durning, King, Bader, and Pillion the Crimson faced three professional "big timers" in its last three games, and, while beaten, may welcome a college pitcher with a jolly salvo of hits

Before meeting these service teams Duffy's athletes had the reputation of being good hitters, but, like inexperienced youngsters, fell down before the classy brand of pitching ill-advised college authorities forced them to meet.

O'KEEFFE DOWN TO HURL.

Dan O'Keeffe will oppose the Blues, and should be able to hold his own His work in all of his games this spring with the exception of an inning or two against Jack Barry's Navy Yard outfit, has been fine Either Peirson or Newton will act as reserve pitcher

Capt Gross tomorrow is celebrating his twenty first birthday, and hopes for a victory to make his afternoon the end of a perfect day

It is Gross' last game of the year, the War Department having ordered the speedy shortstop, also Larry Peirson, to report next Wednesday at Camp Grant, Ill., for military training for an officers' commission.

Tanny White and Dan Barry will umpire the game, which will start at 3 o'clock

CHICAGO BANKER HAS BIG IDEA FOR BOYS

Nelson N. Lampert Urges Government to Institute Compulsory Training

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Nelson N. Lampert, president of the Fort Dearborn National Bank, Chicago, is a sportsman, a lover of the best in sport and keenly interested in baseball, yachting, golf and athletics of all sorts.

He has just put forward one of the biggest ideas that ever was handed out to the sporting world, or to the people of the United States. He has not made it public until now and it is my luck to have read what he has written on the subject.

Mr. Lampert proposes and urges that the United States at once institute a system of compulsory athletic training of every boy between the ages of fourteen and twenty-one.

NEW DUTIES TO COME.

With a banker's thoroughness he reviews the need of such training as a preparation of the boys and men of America for the new duties that will fall upon us after the world war. He knows how it can be done and why it should be done.

I am given the privilege of making excerpts from the article Mr Lampert has prepared on the subject He says

While universal service is a good war system, will it prove a sound peace plan? If universal service is adopted, then a National athletic program would serve to prepare young America for it. If universal service is not put into operation, then general athletic training will prove a good substitute

It has always been a matter of interest to me to observe the difference between boys who have had athletic training and those who have not I found that boys who love to play also enjoy work It was this discovery that led me to encourage the organization of baseball teams among the employes of the bank I discovered that the exercise the boys obtained on the ball field produced a reflex of vigor in the bank. The same spirit that made the team want to win evidenced itself to the advantage of the bank

SUBSTANCE OF PLAN.

Government control and direction of systematic athletic training of the youth of the country is the substance of my plan In the operation of the project, athletic instructors, sports field and gymnasium would be supplied to each precinct and each boy would be given the opportunity to take part in such physical achievements as would best suit his development. This would result in the development of 100 per cent. of our boys instead of 10 per cent, as at present

In no race, in no age, in no clime, has athleticism taken such hold as on the people of in these early years of the twentieth century. All unconsciously perhaps, as is the individualist way of development, athleticism has been responsible in a great measure for our being able to meet at all the present crisis in the world's history

The Olympic games of the last quarter of a century have proven that the United States can, and does, produce the greatest athletes of the world.

A NATIONAL NECESSITY.

We may say that physical training among the lines most acceptable, and therefore most beneficial, is obtained in spite of the wishes of parents and guardians But the national necessity must be met America should never again be caught off guard as it has been in the world war. She must prepare to support the position she has been forced to take as a world power. It is undeniably necessary that our youth give a portion of their time to national service of preparation that the United States may achieve its destiny

The war has taught the big athletic clubs and the schools the necessity of quantity production of athletics rather than quality The United States government alone can make quantity production a success Organization of a bureau of athletics to reach into every precinct in the country and have a schedule of athletics provided for all youth from fourteen to twenty-one solves the problem

STAGE IS WELL SET.

The machinery and personnel of this bureau are practically ready now to go to work. Our great athletic clubs can supply the men and the enthusiasm to carry this plan to perfection. But government control and direction are essential, as otherwise there is no systematic merging of military training and athletics for the best development of the race

The idea is a pretty big one and Mr. Lampert is very much interested in it. He is urging it upon those he knows and is ready to present his arguments and invite discussion.

Already the plan has been put up to Washington officials and presented to army officers and others, and it has met with enthusiasm almost everywhere.

BILLY MISKE TO BOX DEMPSEY ONCE AGAIN

Western Battlers Matched for Return Engagement—Milwaukee Books Combat

By SAM HALL.

Chicago, May 10.—Jack Dempsey and Billy Miske will do battle again in Milwaukee. Just what date will find these battlers in action is a matter for Tom Andrews to decide, but the meeting is almost certain.

Both Jack Reddy and Jack Kearns, managers of the glove wielders, gave their word to the Milwaukee promoter yesterday for the return engagement.

The unsatisfactory finish of last Friday night's fight at Minneapolis brought about the return engagement.

In St. Paul and Minneapolis a majority of the critics called the contest a draw. Few gave it to Dempsey. But the Chicago, Denver and Milwaukee scribes thought the Frisco boy won by a mile.

RED SOX, AFTER SIX SETBACKS IN ROW ON ROAD, BACK AT FENWAY FOR A LONG STAND

There was something funereal in the march of the Red Sox as they retreated back to Boston today. The exuberance and pepper of first place and steady victory was all, all gone.

The Barrow brigade, so to speak, was absolutely repulsed at all points on the just ended offensive. Six attacks were hurled back with great loss, and a lead that looked wide enough to stand the wear and tear of a season wiped right off the [illegible]

Cobb is growing corpulent, as the White Sox discovered when they were in Detroit. His girth [illegible] inches. His chest protrudes from an abundance of fat and his limbs fill much more ample [illegible] than they did a half dozen years ago.

Comes warm weather and Cobb will speed up and do a lot of base running, part of it on the strength of his reputation and the fear in which opposing players hold him. But he will not be the [illegible] because [illegible] cannot pack weight and go the route.

LITTLE MAUDIE LOSES HER FIELD AT PIMLICO

Pimlico, Md., May 10.—The opening [illegible] at Pimlico was won by Little Maudie. She made every post a winning one for Eddie McBride. Sweeplet, the favorite, placed, with Dunedin carrying the silks of Ernest Hall, third. Unwise Child was last the entire trip.

Long shots took down all three places in the second contest. Ensor brought Julia L. in the winner, with Millrace second and High Low, a real long shot, third.

BARROW CLAIMS FANCY SALARY IS KEEPING EVERS OUT OF BASEBALL

Manager Barrow of the Red Sox was greatly surprised, according to a Washington dispatch, when informed that Trojan John Evers was "talking peevish" regarding the Red Sox to New York scribes.

"No one wants to see Johnny catch on with a major league club more than I do," said Barrow to the AMERICAN, "but I cannot understand why he should be sore at the Boston club as he is drawing his salary just the same.

"My experience with different clubs has been that Johnny elsewhere would have been given his walking papers, minus the salary attachment. It is just that salary that is keeping Johnny out of the game, as it is too big for any club to take a chance with."

Evers continues to declare that he is fit and ready to play ball, and was given a "dirty deal" by the Red Sox. He is being mentioned as a Yankee possibility, and expresses willingness to join Huggins' team.

Babe Ruth Busts His Way Into Lead of Swat Brigade

Babe Ruth, idol of Red Sox fandom, who collected five hits for a total of ten bases in the game against Washington yesterday, now stands at the top of the American League batting averages.

In the last five days Ruth has climbed to a hitting percentage of .500.

BUNTS AND BINGLES

By H. W. LANIGAN

THE BIGGEST man in baseball is Babe Ruth. That goes every way he is taken—or measured.

* * *

RUTH IS not only the king of the south paws (Chicago and Pittsburgh papers please copy) but he's the boss of all long-distance bludgeon wielders of this or any other generation, a good man on the defensive, either when on the hill or on first, and much faster on pins than most folks seem to think. What's better, he loves baseball and would pitch [illegible] matinees per if he had his way [illegible]

* * *

IT WAS a tough [illegible] trip for the Sox. They played six games and suffered [illegible] reverses. The scores of the last [illegible] final at New York and the [illegible] region in particular [illegible] was radically [illegible] wake up and go after 'em.

* * *

'TWAS TRIS SPEAKER who did [illegible] work for the Fohlites in putting them at [illegible] of the Red Sox in the race. He batted [illegible] on the day, inserting the blows that beat the Tigers.

* * *

BAGBY IS back in his '17 form for the Indians. Early in the week he [illegible] a three-hit game and yesterday he held the Detroiters to five blows. [illegible] pulled out two of them, while Cobb went hitless.

* * *

THORMAHLEN, M. HUGGINS' good looking rookie southpaw [illegible] the fire in great shape after [illegible] Allan Russell out in one [illegible] applied the brush in [illegible] Miller busted out [illegible] Peckinpaugh also [illegible]

* * *

THE REDS again beat the Cards in the ninth. This time one run was enough [illegible] muff giving it. Heinie Groh, with two singles and a double, was the swat star of the bout.

LITTLE EVA VAUGHN turned in his usual win for the Cubs. His mates feasted on the [illegible] of Pirates Sanders and [illegible] ert, with a perfect card. Hollocher, Walter Rehg's old side pal on the [illegible] in St. Louis, Flack and Mann [illegible] hardest.

THAT'S [illegible] the Giants [illegible] tory [illegible] five drives. Kauff garnered three out of three, Wilholt two out of two, and Young and Fletcher two apiece.

Chet Thomas Sought by Fohlites in Deal With Mack

Cleveland, May 10.—A deal in [illegible] Cleveland [illegible] catcher [illegible] Connie Mack has been asked [illegible] for terms [illegible] Thomas [illegible] is now a holdout [illegible] the players Mack got in his deal last Winter with the Boston Red Sox.

WEILMAN IS TO REJOIN JONES' FAMILY JUNE 1

Fielder Jones has his St. Louis Browns bunk hopping along in good shape in the American League race. [illegible] Bert Shotton and Johnny La[illegible] are playing tip-top ball for Washington, the two little hustlers [illegible] being missed by the St. Louis [illegible]

Jones has heard from headquarters that Carl Weilman, his crack south[illegible] who has been on the sick list [illegible] 1917 campaign and who [illegible] was feared the past Winter was through with the game, was practically himself again and expects to report for service by June 1.

Jones' morning tip was that either [illegible] whom he secured from Clark Griffith when he parted with [illegible] and Lavan, or Sothoron would [illegible] against the Sox.

FRED FULTON IS KID COMPARED TO WILLARD

Minnesota Plasterer Will Go Into Ring With Edge of Ten Years on Champion

By ALLAN MARKLEY,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

New York, May 10.—Fred Fulton will have an edge of ten years on big Jess Willard when the two meet in their championship affair.

According to the past records of the fighting game the Minnesota plasterer should outclass the big fellow.

After delving into the record books we find that since the days of bare knuckle fighting no champion has survived a hard battle after he had passed the fortieth milestone.

W[illegible] past [illegible]

[illegible] one of the [illegible] men lost the title when [illegible] two to Paddy Ryan, and it is said that Ryan was by no means the best man who could have opposed the champion, but he was the youngest heavyweight in America.

Sullivan then relieved Ryan of the [illegible] two years later. John L. at that time was in his prime and was only [illegible] four years old [illegible]

[illegible] then [illegible] bea[illegible] Corbett was a [illegible] athlete and the most skilful boxer in America. Again it was the same story, the younger man conquered. Sullivan was thirty-four when he lost the title.

When he met Bob Fitzsimmons it was clearly a battle in which the younger man again conquered because of his greater ability. Corbett was thirty-five when he conceded the honors to Fitzsimmons.

Fitz in turn put [illegible] battle ever at [illegible] seven when he met Jeffries. The Californian had the edge [illegible] the extent of fourteen years, which counted in the final decision [illegible] it was the same old story where age had decreased Fitz's fighting trim.

Johnson also lost the title at thirty-seven. At that time it was plainly evident that he was on the decline. Jeffries had retired at twenty-nine, and when finally induced to battle with the negro was no match for him.

BRAVES NOTES

ALAN FURMAN, University of Vermont [illegible], made good with a rush. He reported a couple of days ago for trial and looked so nifty that Stallings signed him [illegible] him along on the West trip.

* * *

WALTER TRAGESSER has recovered sufficiently from the bias[illegible] operation on his jaw to be out and around. He will have a chance to view the Sox for a couple of weeks.

* * *

FIELDER JONES and most of the Browns watched the Braves and Dodgers go to it. The St. Louis manager admits that his ball club is started and will cut quite a figure in the race.

* * *

LONG DAVE DAVENPORT and Bert Gallia were all primed to start this afternoon's American League revival for the visitors. According to the regular scheme of things, it was up to Carl Mays for our side.

THE NEW YORK writers are boosting Jawn Evers for a job with the Yankees [illegible] like to have [illegible] of good [illegible] at times.

Stallings' Clan Opens Long Jaunt in Chicago—Dodgers Beat Fillingim, 3-1

This Day in Our History

THIS is the anniversary of the capture, in 1775, by Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain Boys, of Fort Ticonderoga. He demanded its surrender in the name of "the Great Jehovah and the Continental Congress." This was the first aggressive act of the colonies.

When Lovers Quarrel

USUALLY OVER TRIVIAL INCIDENTS

Beatrice Fairfax Urges a Little Restraint and Common Sense on Both Sides

By Beatrice Fairfax

IF you see a homely g[illegible] [illegible] positively pretty, and wa[illegible] as if she were a goddess, and a deeper, sweeter note creeps into her voice—it's because she is in love.

And if you see a young man striding along as if he owned the earth and had a mortgage on heaven, it is for the same reason.

Both have a touch of the divine madness that while it lasts, takes this gra[illegible] world racked with war, pestilence, poverty and death—and covers it with the glory of the rainbow.

Love is a mirage that reveals the promised land just beyond our grasp. Do we ever reach it? That interesting question the poets, philosophers, the [illegible] who mends our boots, the king, [illegible] shop and the chambermaid [illegible] been discussing since Adam and Eve were evicted from paradise. And the last word has not yet been said.

Since man began to set down his first conscious thoughts by scratching flat stones with sharp ones, we have had symbols and picture-writing that stand for the strongest of human emotions. No doubt love was the inspiration of the first debating society. The worthies of Thebes, Tyre or Palmyra had interesting things to say about the tender passion, and they wanted an audience.

What the Poets Say

Solomon, [illegible] has been maligned, may be regarded as an authority on the subject. He said: "Many waters cannot quench love, neither [illegible]." And agai[illegible] is strong as death; [illegible] the grave." A[illegible] who wrote some [illegible] most exquisite love [illegible], is of the opinion [illegible] "The lunatic, the lover and the poet are of imagination all compact."

Dozens of quotations might be given to prove that love is a kind of rapture, almost [illegible] er of the hu[illegible] tures are [illegible] overpowering [illegible] like seaweed [illegible] of the tide.

[illegible] state of mind in which [illegible] throws the work-a-day world out of joint, for the time being, and is the cause of the constant quarrels and misunderstandings. The victims of the divine madness never quite see things at their face value, everything, especially the beloved, looms through a magnifying or a diminishing glass.

Nothing is as it seems—molehills are mountains, an admiring glance appears to be a frown of disapproval. A calm reply to a question may indicate indifference or hatred—nothing is too exaggerated for the victim of mischievous Cupid.

The world looks on amused; the tragedies of lovers are comedies for the onlookers who have forgotten all about the time they were victims of the divine madness.

More than half the letters that come to me on the subject of lovers' quarrels contain nothing more than: "I said 'Good evening' to her, and she answered, in a cool, far-away tone.

Too Perturbed to Answer

"I'm sure I don't know what she can be mad about."

Now, the poor lover could not be expected to know that "She," ar[illegible] [illegible] to say "Good evening" to her, for an hour and a half, or even longer. And that when he finally arrived on the scene, she was so perturbed and anxious, so fearful that he would not come at all to say that momentous "Good evening," [illegible]

[illegible] pretty [illegible] that [illegible] had planned and wept [illegible] eyes were swollen and [illegible]

A [illegible] girl of my acquaintance [illegible] with [illegible]

[illegible] had never sent her flowers, or [illegible], and [illegible] decided [illegible] her heart was broken and that she would do something utterly tragic. She decide to go to [illegible] lepers—that [illegible] the most sacrificial thing of which she was capable.

She went home and packed a suit case, de[illegible] to visit a married sister in an adjacent city, till her plans were made. She felt that any fate was preferable to again seeing the man to whom she had given her love in vain.

Lepers Would Be Unpleasant

At her sister's house new aspects of her case arose. She was the only [illegible] at home [illegible] sacrifice herself in another way. She would give up party frocks, pretty slippers, do her hair unbecomingly. [illegible]

She returned home and on the [illegible] the first thing that met [illegible] box [illegible] with [illegible] bearing the man's [illegible] to go to a [illegible]

[illegible] confessed that he [illegible] desperate [illegible] no ac[illegible] They are both comfortable middle-aged people now, married and with two sons in the army in France. How far off [illegible] madness must seem [illegible]

Despite the fact that Shakespeare said "Men have died from time to time, and worms have eaten them, but not for love," quite a goodly number [illegible] lives, owing to unrequited affection. And girls without number have "ended it all" owing to some foolish lovers' quarrel, when a little talking it out would have solved everything.

Talk it out to some trustworthy friend, but be sure of the friend before you give your confidence. And don't quarrel irrevocably unless some big issue is involved; don't let imaginary looks and fancied cool greetings cause a separation. If you are in love you are looking at life through a prism, and nothing appears natural.

A Hint From Dan—"Join the Land-Army!"

YOUNG Dan wades the April grasses whitening with flowers in the creases and folds of the hills, flowers that drift in fence corners and around the bright stream where it dives darkly under the wooden arch where the road goes over with dusty feet. I wonder if a road, thirsty and warm in the Spring sun, isn't glad when a brook flows over, and spreads crystally and cool in little glassy sheets, down its wheel paths? There are thin green and yellow veils hung in all the trees—April's chiffons. I saw Jack-in-the-pulpits on the rich edge of a swampy hollow. Some tender little maiden trees are necklaced with rubies in the sunlight—little dainty scarlet buds innumerable. Robins are on gray fence rails—furry from a bath and spreading their feathers smooth and flat with the sharp little swords of their beaks.

There are bare-foot boys on the lanes, their little legs as white as lily-bulbs taken out of Winter storage—and soon they'll be brown as "sassafras tea." The farmers are on the hills, their big horses stepping leisurely and clever'y, with manes blown in banners in the Spring wind. . . . The grasses are almost a-meeting over young Dan's golden top-knot. And only a clever eye, that could see through the door of Nyssia's chamber, the eye that a young man has in Spring when his "fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love," could trace his moving abroad by the waving and rocking of the field grass where he creeps.

Young Dan's abroad—over the world, in the Spring. Under a tree, bright with new green, in its delicate shade, where the gray fence stoops under, the farmer-boy lingers, and twirls a flower.

And across the fence—all the world between, to his ardent fancy, is the girl his heart is soft for—in a pink print gown and sun-bonnet. Her face is pink, and her lips. And her dark hair is in a soft, tempting cloud at the back of her little round waist. If you look well and closely—under the curve of a "Believer's" hand, you might see, among the dancing, flickering butterflies, golden and nile-green and black, two red hearts—one little, 'tother big—holding hands, wavering in gay flight in the gentle April air! NELL BRINKLEY.

The Four of Hearts

A SERIAL OF YOUTH AND LOVE

Dora's Father and Mother Scoff at Her Reluctance to Marry Milton and Insist on Obedience

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER LIII.

Copyright, 1918, by the Star Company.

WHEN one has exercised reticence on an important subject, and then lets himself speak of it, it is as if the floodgates were [illegible] opened [illegible] it is hard to close them [illegible]

Dora's [illegible] had so far [illegible] her reserve with regard to her feelings towards Milton Van Saun that her [illegible] was also [illegible] away. So [illegible] that now that she has begun to speak her mind she must free it to the one person to whom she would under ordinary circumstances have been least likely to [illegible]

She was still trembling and excited when she [illegible] at her own front door. Without pausing to [illegible] her [illegible] she went straight to her mother's room. That lady was lying on the couch and looked up languidly as her daughter entered.

"Well, honey," she began, then, as she saw Dora's flushed face, she asked quickly "What's the matter? Is Mr. Van Saun worse?"

"No[illegible] least I suppose not. Cyr[illegible] there now. I w[illegible] stop with her. I didn't want to."

"Why not, my dear? While there was no necessity of your stopping you might, at least, seem to [illegible] interest in what concerns Milton."

"I might, but I won't," exclaimed the girl. She threw her muff on the [illegible] and faced her mother. "I[illegible] something I want to speak to you about. No, don't look surprised or shocked, or any of those [illegible] I may as well tell the truth. I'm tired of being engaged to Milton. He loves me. So does his father. So does everything connected with the marriage!"

Dropping onto a chair she buried her face in her hands and burst into tears.

Mrs. Livingstone sat up on the couch and looked at her [illegible] Dora had often [illegible] but it was new for [illegible] of the world [illegible] Why need the child make such a scene now just when the wedding [illegible] were progressing so [illegible]?

A Command

"Dora!" the matron's voice was stern. "Stop that crying. It is because you are overtired that you [illegible] You have been doing [illegible] with all your social [illegible] your anxiety [illegible] be [illegible] by Mr. Van Saun's illness. Inside all this, Milton has been so much absorbed in his father that he has not been with you as much as usual and you have missed him. All these conditions have combined to destroy your sense of proportion. Now stop crying."

The girl obeyed, lifting her face from her hands and wiping away her tears. But her eyes had a look in them that her mother did not like. Could it be defiance?

"That is more sensible," Mrs. Livingstone approved. "Take off your hat and coat and we will talk quietly until you feel more like yourself. Then you must go to your room and lie down for a while."

"I don't need to lie down," Dora said, removing her hat and coat and tossing them on the bed by her muff. Then, seating herself again, [illegible] want me to [illegible]

[illegible] an expression [illegible]

[illegible] I want you to marry [illegible] when I had nothing to do with it! You and he [illegible] naturally, because [illegible] cared for each other."

"[illegible] it was expected of us [illegible] ever seen [illegible] better," the girl [illegible] that was [illegible] But there should be something more, mother, [illegible]

Her voice dropped to a lower key, and [illegible] frowned.

"You know that Milton loves you, Dora." Then, with a note of anxiety, "Has he not told you so often [illegible]?"

Dora nodded. "Oh, I suppose so. At least he has acknowledged that he w[illegible] have asked me to marry him unless he cared for me. But, mother, suppose I don't care for [illegible]"

The Father Comes In

"[illegible] do!" Her mother spoke decided[illegible] and q[illegible]. "I will not [illegible] to yield to such ridiculous [illegible] Ah!" with an expression [illegible] here is your father!"

As [illegible] entered the room, Mrs. L[illegible] made a swift re[illegible] while the [illegible]

[illegible] she explained, "this [illegible] herself miserable for fear she does not love Milton as much as he loves her. This is all a foolish [illegible]"

[illegible] Livingstone was quick[illegible] the table of [illegible] His [illegible] marriage [illegible] father [illegible]

[illegible] I wager I loved you [illegible] better than she loved me when we married. [illegible]

[illegible] "I have been [illegible] that I do not care to [illegible]"

[illegible] "Don't make me ashamed of my unusually sensible daughter, Dora. Your mother and I will try to forget this absurd scene, and you will do the same. The only excuse for it is the one your dear mother has probably made for you—that you are overtired and over-wrought. I am sure you regret your exhibition of nervousness as much as we do. So let us say no more about it."

Puss in Boots Jr.

By David Cory

ONE day as little Puss Junior was traveling through a strange country he heard a voice from a tree top singing:

"Oh, I'm the King of the Merry Winds
That push the ships over the sea,
That turn the sails of the big windmills
That stand so tall on the lea,
I fly the kites of the little boys
And whirl around their pinwheel toys,
And turn the weathercocks to and fro,
And stormy nights down the chimney blow."

"Come down and talk to me," called out Puss, for he wanted to see what kind of a king this windy monarch was, you see.

"Wait a minute," said the voice, and pretty soon down came a little fairy-like person with gauzy wings. And in his hand he carried a great long silver horn.

And as soon as he was safely on the ground he put the silver instrument to his lips and blew upon it, and all the leaves in the forest began to whisper.

And as soon as he finished blowing he turned to Puss and said: "What favor can I do for you, little Pussy Cat! I see you are a traveler," and he looked at his red-top boots and smiled.

"Haven't you a little silver horn to give me?" said Puss. "I would like one to blow away evil spirits and hate. For sometimes when I am traveling I meet with strange enemies who would do me harm."

"Wait a moment," said the King of the Merry Winds, and then he opened a tiny door in the tree and went inside. And pretty soon he came out with a little silver whistle which hung by a silver chain. "Here, little Pussy Cat, is a magic wind whistle. Blow upon it softly and you will stir a little breeze. But blow a blast upon it and a whirlwind will arise and scatter an army of men."

"Thank you," said Puss, and he fastened the chain to his waistcoat and placed the whistle in his pocket.

"I will use it the first time I am in trouble," and then he bowed to the King of the Merry Winds and set out once more upon his travels. And in the next story you shall hear to what use he put this little silver whistle, for you may be [illegible] something will happen, for [illegible] doesn't travel in strange countries without meeting with strange adventures, and to be prepared for them is necessary when one is traveling alone, let me tell you.

Childhood Fires of Genius

By William A. McKeever

RECENTLY I stopped at a beautiful farm home where the rich land was priced at $250 per acre. "Right out here in front is the trail of the 'Forty-Niners.' Thousands of men passed over the old road, gold seekers," said the owner. "The gold was in the soil here then, but they did not know how to get it out."

Shortly afterward I stood by a big, new oil well gushing 1,200 barrels per day—$3,600 worth. This extreme wealth had been hidden there for millions of years, but until recently no man knew the secret of its location or how to get it.

Again, I was riding on a street car in a city of nearly a million people. The power for the entire system, and that of half a dozen other smaller cities, all came from a big dam, a [illegible] where the energy of the fal[illegible] had been going to waste for ages — till someone tapped this mighty force.

I know a woman who was misjudged and misguided in childhood by a va[illegible] to drag along [illegible] in an effort to gain a "[illegible]" Then, by chance, she married a good man, and the divinity of motherhood made her a new creature. She is now a happy, radiant mother of three.

I have recently talked with a man whose brain was a latent storehouse of musical genius, and at thirty-six—a plain, dull painter and paper hanger—he uncovered by accident this vein of pent-up energy. His happy songs are now being sung by thousands.

Another man has been twenty-five years in the position of accountant in a big railway establishment. At twenty he was literally overflowing with interest in floriculture, when his father arbitrarily hustled him off to take a course in a commercial school. That finer genius is now shut up within him and can never be released. It is too late, and the victim of the blunder is a dull drone.

These cases in physical nature and human nature are parallel. The world is stored with riches. Man at birth is full of latent energies, a wealth that needs to be discovered and released, or his life becomes a cheap and uninteresting thing.

Many of the gross faults [illegible] commit because their lives are so dull to them, and these lives can be transformed and their victims redeemed through a sudden release of the best latent energy too long overlooked.

Many parents fail to realize that the training of a child is not putting something into the mind but rather bringing something out—something pent up and ready for action. The child is a storehouse of potential energy. Just what chord to touch or just what spring to release in order that the reactions may prove most valuable for the learner—that is the problem of the trainer of the child.

Your boy, your girl, was not born to be an underling. Get this foolish idea out of your mind. Search your child through and through for his hidden genius. Call on others to help you. Release some of this pent up energy at each stage of his growth. He is stored with childhood genius; later his youthful genius may be uncovered, and finally his adult genius—if tapped and put to a vocational task—will make his life one of happiness and charm.

How to release that divine energy in your child? That is not a difficult matter. In childhood, that task which gives most eager delight; during youth, that employment which most satisfies his ardent dreams; at approaching adulthood, that vocation which lures him on to a long day of close, persistent application—here is a certain clue to the source of power and plenty hidden within your boy or girl.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Shocking Hours

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Being the mother of the girl in question causes me to ask your advice. I can assure you the favor will be highly appreciated.

Girls A and B are very intimate friends; both these girls feel that going out three times a week and not returning home until 2 o'clock is nothing detrimental to their reputations. I, being the mother of A, feel and am sure that if my daughter were not g[illegible] with B she would be ho[illegible]

My daughter, who is twenty, tries to convince me that B is in no way responsible for her conduct — namely, her staying out late, although A and B are always out together.

A MOTHER.

I DO not wonder at your anxiety in regard to a daughter of twenty who remains out till 2 o'clock in the morning several times a week. A girl who keeps such hours cannot hope to keep her reputation, and whether the other girl is or is not responsible for such reckless disregard for appearances, it is unfortunate that she should have such a friend. Can you not get your daughter interested in something more wholesome and normal for a girl of her age than such unconventional hours? Why not try gradually to wean her away from the other girl; surely there must be some other friends who would have a greater regard for appearances and not be so harmful to your daughter's future chances in life.

Invite Him by All Means

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am nineteen and have met a man ten years my senior in whom I am deeply interested. Although I have only seen him a few times, he has met my parents, who like him very much. Would it be improper for me to invite him to be my escort at a reception given by one of my relatives? PUZZLED.

IT would be perfectly proper for you to ask the young man to the reception, particularly as your parents have met him and like him.

In Our Wonderful World

The [illegible] are far ahead of all [illegible] of making [illegible] flowers [illegible] copy with marvelous fidelity not only the blossoms, but whole branches and even plants in bloom. They are particularly clever in imitating wistaria, cherry trees and rose trees, and the flowers are so naturally made in either cotton or silk that they sometimes deceive the keenest critic.

KEEP BRAKES IN GOOD ORDER TO SAVE TIRES

By C. F. DONNOCKER.

Even the casual observer cannot fail to notice the abrupt stops made by some drivers of automobiles, and they must also see the long mark made on the asphalt or paving where the tire is dragged over the surface by the locked wheel. Sometimes it is even possible to detect the odor of the scorched rubber, the friction is so great.

This method of coming to a stop is injurious to the tires, because in nine cases out of ten one wheel is locked and the other brake refuses to take hold. This is due to the driver's carelessness in neglecting to see that the brake "eveners" are working properly. All brakes should be inspected regularly to see that they act evenly on both wheels. This means longer life and consequently greater mileage on tires. Not only is economy one of the things to be thought of but actual safety may depend on proper adjustment of the brakes.

USE THE EMERGENCY.

While most drivers use the service brake altogether, it is good practice to use the emergency brake occasionally, at least often enough to become familiar with its efficiency. When it is necessary to use the brakes, the driver wants to feel sure that they will work and should know just how quickly they will stop the car.

A regular inspection of the brakes to determine the condition of brake lining is also a very good plan because it really is the lining of the brakes that is called on to do the work, the brakes themselves only acting as a form to hold this lining. Once the habit is formed of thoroughly going over the car for these little details, the less often will accidents occur and the repair bills will decrease.

The Detroit Pressed Steel Company, manufacturers of Disteel (disc steel) wheels for automobiles, has opened an office for sales and service in Boston for New England at No. 925 Boylston street, in charge of Geo. K. Selleck, as manager.

HAS MANY GOOD POINTS.

The Disteel Wheel was exhibited for the first time at the New York show as equipment on some of the most costly cars. Spokes are replaced with a concave steel disc which is mounted with the concave side outward.

Style and appearance are aimed for in this latest development of the motor car wheel, but important advantages claimed for it are that it is easy to keep clean, that strains are diffused, that it seldom bends, never collapses under the severest side thrust strains and is easy to demount.

Joyless Fourth for Children; No Fireworks

By International News Service.

Washington, May 10.—The Fourth of July will be celebrated without fireworks this year. The output of every fireworks factory in the United States has been purchased by the War Department and will be used in supplying the army with flares and signal lights. In odd corners of the country where dealers have a few firecrackers left over from last year, there may be some popping of explosives on the nation's birthday natal day, but the larger cities and towns will be without noise.

In addition to placing thousands of dollars' worth of contracts with the fireworks factories, the War Department has constructed the largest pyrotechnic factory in the world.

nerosity Means Sacrifice

k at the Cost, and Not the Price-Mark, and Learn the Real Value of What You Do for Others

Copyright, 1918, by the Star Company.

This is an editorial on GENEROSITY.

Let us not begin with the supposition that generosity is rare. Every man who remembers his mother knows better than that. Where is the mother who would not deny herself for her child? Where is the mother who would not go without pretty clothes, food, drink, medicine, comfort, that her children might have all these things? Where is the mother living today who does not daily undergo sacrifices cheerfully to add a little to the enjoyment of her sons and daughters?

But the lives of the mothers of the world, while they set a beautiful example for all mankind, are too often passed by with neglect.

And today we ask you to consider the case of large numbers of people who THINK THEY ARE GENEROUS because, from some purely selfish motive, they give away what they do not need.

The man about town, coming home from the opera, sees a beggar woman on the street corner, and tosses a dollar bill to her. He feels a generous thrill as he does this worthy thing—his chest expands and he says to himself: "Really, I am a pretty good fellow, after all. No appeal from the suffering is made to ME in vain."

Next morning he is informed that his brother is ill—dying, perhaps—in a far away town. To send money is easy. He writes his check for a couple of hundred dollars and drops it into a mail box with another glow of self-satisfied pride. "It does beat the world," he murmurs to himself, "what a generous chap I am. How many brothers would be so willing to dig up—instantly, too—and without a thought about the money?"

But strange news comes back over the telegraph wire. His brother doesn't need money; he has enough to pay for his doctor and his hospital bills. He is all alone, without friends. What he wants is to see his brother—to have some relative by him in his last illness.

Ah! This is a different matter. To go to the sick brother's bedside would mean sacrifice—sacrifice of pleasure, of business interests, of comfort. The brother thinks it over and grows uncomfortable. Then he says to himself:

"It is all foolishness—his wanting me. He has money, he has good doctors, a good nurse, everything that can be done for him is being done. It is outrageous that he should ask me to leave my friends and my home and my business and go to him. I'll send him all the money he wants, but as for going—no, it can't be done!"

And so our pattern of generosity, who blithely tosses a dollar bill to a beggar woman, isn't generous, after all; only a selfish, sordid, every-day man, who will give freely and continuously—AS LONG AS IT DOESN'T COST HIM ANYTHING.

Mr. Rockefeller, having more money than he could spend on himself if his life were to be prolonged through centuries, endows a college in Chicago, and, better still, establishes a great institution in New York for the purpose of finding the causes of the dreadful diseases that lay waste the population of whole tenement districts at a time. His liberality is needful. There should be no question of accepting his money or asking where he got it. Such part of it as he has given away is doing a good work.

Mr. Carnegie, having amassed some hundreds of millions, chooses to spend it on libraries, and books to fill them, providing, thriftily, as he thinks, that the beneficiaries of his liberality shall be liberal, too.

The libraries are useful—the books ought to be read. There is no reason why any community should refuse a Carnegie library if it can afford to keep it up.

But the liberality of Mr. Carnegie, like the liberality of Mr. Rockefeller, costs the giver NOTHING.

Endowing a university does not mean that there will be less meat on the Rockefeller table, fewer automobiles to carry the head of the Rockefeller family to and from work, a scarcity of greensward on the Rockefeller golf course.

And all the libraries that Mr. Carnegie has given away have not imposed upon him any self-denial — and self-denial is what counts, after all.

It is not to be denied that as a nation we have a habit of looking at PRICE-MARKS, which very seldom tell us anything about actual prices.

The actor or actress devoting to charity gifts made valuable by long years of toil; the doctor giving his valuable time to the poor, without hope of compensation; the clergyman working for the physical and moral welfare of his congregation on a fourth of the salary he could earn outside the church; the honest statesman sacrificing a large income to serve his fellow-countrymen—such as these are truly generous.

What they do for their fellows COSTS SOMETHING. And so does the giving of money, when it is accompanied by thought, by interest in the object for which it is given, and by a sacrifice of the TIME of the giver.

Going down into one's pocket as a response to a call for charity is one thing. Finding for one's self a public duty that needs doing, and intelligently considering the best way to do it, is quite another.

The first is LIBERALITY. The second is GENEROSITY.

DON'T TRY TO DIG IT ALL AT ONCE

Garden work tires you, makes your back ache; for that reason you have decided that you will not have a garden this year.

This is unwise and unpatriotic.

That gardening makes your back ache is proof that you need just such exercise from a health standpoint.

If your muscles are made sore by spading and digging and planting, they are not in good condition and the cure is plain enough.

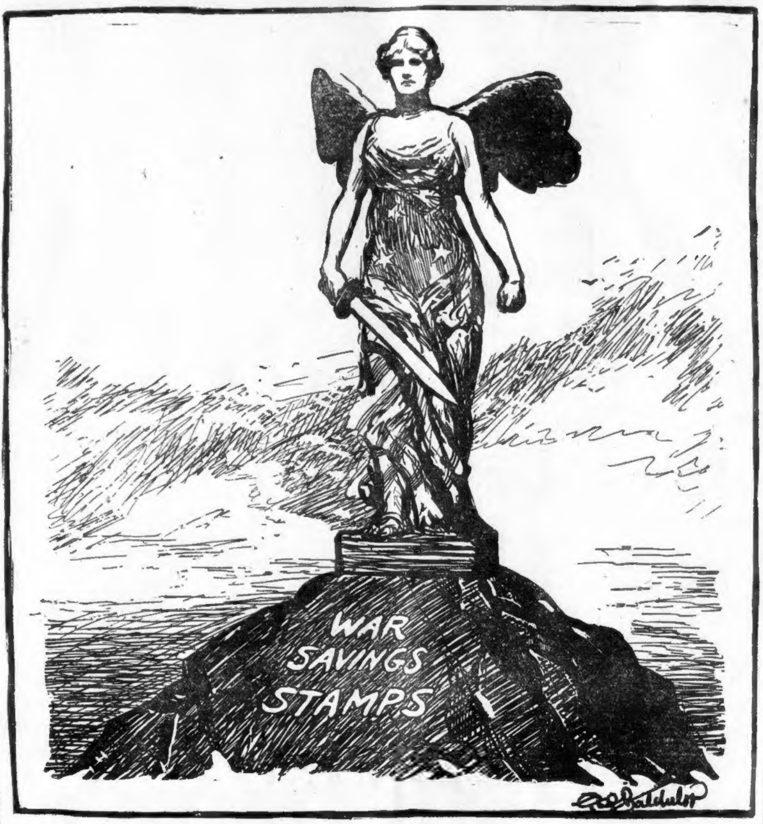
But there is a right way and a wrong way to go about it. Do not do too much at any one time. Work into it gradually.

In the past you were so anxious to get everything started at once that you overtaxed your physical strength and were laid up for days with stiff joints and you are lucky if you escaped tonsilitis or lumbago.

Use your common sense in gardening as well as anything else and be gradual in taking up work to which you are unaccustomed. Then look at it as sport and yourself as fortunate in having a little patch of ground to work.

Be a good American and be good to yourself at the same time.

Victory's Pedestal



ELIZABETH JORDAN'S ARTICLE

Romance May Live Next Door to a Hardworking Youth, but, Until Eyes of Blue Look Into His Soul and Kindle the Love Fires, He Is Not Aware of the Proximity of a Tonic That Makes Spring Seem Stale.

By Elizabeth Jordan

THE boy was bending over his desk, patiently making his way through a mass of mail.

It was not interesting mail. His duty was to read it, classify the letters, and refer them to other individuals and departments for reply. He himself was merely the mail clerk of the big firm. His salary was $25 a week.

He was so familiar with his task that he went at it in a purely routine fashion. He could tell at a glance to which department a letter belonged. As he opened the envelopes his sub-conscious mind was busy with his own personal problems.

He needed a new suit, and he needed it badly. Also he needed new shoes. One shoe, already cobbled, was again splitting out at the side.

But how was he to get these things? His mother, in the little home town where she lived alone, received from him $10 every week. He allowed nothing to interfere with the regular sending of that amount. It represented the income on which she self-respectingly lived, in the cottage that was all his father had left her.

Spreading It Out

On the remaining $15 a week the boy paid his board, his car fares, bought his clothes, met laundry expenses and the incidentals of dentist bills and the like. It left him very little margin. Indeed, he was usually behind his income, rarely free from the acute pressure of small debts.

"A nickel," he ruefully confided to his one chum, "looks bigger to me than a cart wheel."

He was a healthy, clean-minded youth who liked fresh air and long outdoor walks. He did not grow morbid. But he was always conscious that it is "hard on a fellow" to squeeze every penny before he spent it, and to be constantly wondering whether he could "come out even" this week.

When he got very blue he reminded himself of the one splendid fact in his universe. He was supporting his mother. He was making her comfortable. His shoulders strengthened as he remembered that.

But today his life seemed an appalling grind. The office was grimy; the men around him were "grouches"; the monotony of his work got on his nerves; his chief was unreasonable, often unfair; there was no chance of advancement.

Was he to spend all his life in such a place, growing old and gray and shabby, like Jones at the next desk and like Hawkins at the desk beyond? He set his jaw at the thought. Yes, probably he must. He dared not take any risks. He dared not jeopardize that $10 a week on which his mother was living.

But it was awful! Could he endure it much longer? He drew a deep breath. If he bought those new clothes, for instance, which he needed to keep up a decent appearance, he would have to "stand off" the landlady. He'd have to put the situation up to her. He frowned in sick distaste. It was all so sordid. Lived like this, life wasn't worth while.

A familiar voice spoke to him—the voice of the chief's stenographer. She was handing him some more letters. As he took them his fingers touched hers. He looked up and found that she was smiling.

"Headache?" she asked, sympathetically. Her smile was very sweet. He had noticed before that she was a pretty girl. He had not known till now how charming were her soft brown eyes. They were still smiling into his. He smiled back with sudden radiance.

"No," he said. "Just blue, I guess."

Usually she hurried away. This time she lingered.

"Perhaps it's the Spring," she said. "Perhaps you want to be out of doors, just as I do."

"You bet I do!"

Together they looked out of the dingy window over the radiant roofs of lower New York. For the first time the boy noticed that it was a glorious day.

"Do you like to walk?" he asked.

"I love it."

A New Virus

The boy's cheeks flushed. "Will you—will you go up to the Bronx with me next Sunday, if it's fine?"

"Why—I'd love to."

"All right. I'll call for you at 2 o'clock. Let's see. Where do you live?"

She told him. Then she was gone and he returned to his work with a sudden briskness. As he opened his letters he whistled under his breath. Jones, at the next desk, frowned at him and the boy returned a wide and cheerful grin.

"Will you stop that infernal whistling?" yelped Jones. "What the devil's the matter with you, anyway? You were in the dumps a while ago."

The boy grinned. Poor old Jones!

"Spring fever, I guess," he said, airily.

But it wasn't that. It was Romance—who had stopped for an instant at the boy's dingy desk, and touched his shoulder with her magic wand.

THE NATIONAL ANTHEM

Editor Boston American:

A magnificent Liberty Loan pageant was held recently in a well-known Southern city and witnessed by thousands of loyal and patriotic citizens. But to me, at least, one most regrettable incident marred the brilliant event, and of which, as the mother of a soldier now in France, I feel constrained to write you.

The parade was headed by a band, whose leader intentionally or otherwise, selected for the opening march the strictly German composition "Unter dem Doppelader," or "Under the Double Eagle," composed by Wagner, a German, and originally published in Berlin, Germany.

Inwardly I indignantly resented this as decidedly un-American and out of place, as during my lengthy sojourn in Austria and Germany, I noticed that this particular air is played upon all royal or military occasions or celebrations of patriotic nature. The emblem itself, that of the double eagle, adorns the helmets of the rapacious Kaiser, Von Hindenburg, Ludendorff and possibly of the other noble brutes of Kultur fame.

What would happen to the bandmaster playing "The Star Spangled Banner" in Berlin streets?

CARRIE J. SALAK.

Plenty to Do

By MORTON BIRGE

THE Liberty Loan is oversold, the campaign course is run,
But bear you in mind the constant work that waits from sun to sun.
As long as our soldiers fight abroad, as long as Germans roam,
There's plenty to do for us back here—folks who remain at home.

There's giving of time and work and cash, "Letting your light so shine,"
That others may gain and hold with you a patriotism fine.
There's service to those who need relief, here and abroad as well.
The duty is clear for those at home, safe from the shot and shell.

There's "Keeping the home fires burning" bright, doing your daily best,
It isn't enough to buy a bond and then sit down and rest.
As long as our soldiers sail across, over the ocean's foam,
There's plenty to do for us back here—folks who remain at home.

MRS. GRUNDY REVIVES AN OLD FIRE

By Winifred Black

SHE is going over to France, the woman I used to see in the interior city, 'way back there in the mountains.

Going to be hostess at one of the war camp settlements, and a fine hostess she'll make, too.

She's a bit past fifty, I should imagine, as far as years go, but, dear me, her heart isn't a day over twenty. And she laughs a lot, and she knows a good many stories, and how to tell them, and she has a gentle voice, and if any one is in sorrow or pain or trouble she will know just what to do to ease them—for she has suffered much and much has been forgiven her.

It was a great deal to forgive, I'm afraid. She wasn't always discreet, and she didn't always choose the right sort of friends, and sometimes she laughed a little too easily at the wrong kind of things, and the mothers of the nicest girls never accepted her invitations or allowed their daughters to accept them either.

And she laughed and danced her way through life. But one day she made a real mistake—a cruel, selfish one, that made other people suffer—and she had to leave her home town, and people didn't say anything about her for a long time. And then she came back again, older and quieter, and—when she wasn't laughing—very, very sad.

But Some Object

And now she's going to France, and a great moral society's sending her to represent it, and there's a bit of an outcry about it.

Some of the women who have never really laughed in all their lives took it as an outrage that this woman was to be permitted to go and help make the soldiers comfortable, just as if she had sons of her own, and a good husband and a perfectly nice home.

One woman in particular is outraged.

She has a nephew over there, and it just makes her shudder, she says, to think of a woman like that making coffee for him, or soup, or reading to him when he is ill, or writing his letters when he isn't able to write them himself. Why, it's a desecration, a vain, frivolous, giddy creature like that, who never belonged to a ladies' aid society or a young people's club in her life, who played bridge and danced, and—"What was that that really happened, the time she went away so long?" Something shocking, she is sure, and she's going to make a protest about it, and try to keep the woman who laughs—because if she doesn't laugh she'll cry—from going.

Better Go Slow!

Well, perhaps she is right. I don't suppose the woman who laughs really is exactly the sort of person you'd choose for missionary work don't you know. But, dear me, she's so comfortable and cheerful, and tactful, and so warm-hearted, and all the boys will be calling her Aunt Polly before she's been in the hostess house twenty-four hours—if she goes.

If she doesn't go now — I wonder who'll take her place? The woman with the thin lips and the shallow eyes and the cruel, vindictive little way of wondering who people are, and where they came from and what makes them laugh so much?

Poor thing! I suppose she'd love to go herself. I wonder why.

She's never given any one anything for nothing in all her life; not even a smile, not even a gentle, appreciative look, not even a softened tone of voice. She can't; she doesn't know how.

Potato Exhibition

Berlin now has an elaborate "Potato Exhibition," promoted by the food authorities and the Gardening Society for the purpose of public education in the art of potato growing, according to the German papers. Its object is to "teach Germans how to become independent of foreign potato supplies." Besides everything concerned with the gardening side of potatoes there is a department dealing with their culinary possibilities.

DESERTS ARE SIGNS OF PLANETS' DECAY

By Garrett P. Serviss

Is it a fact that large barren areas, such as the deserts of this planet, are an indication that the planet is very old?"—W. H. D.

THE existence of extensive deserts is at least an indication that a planet has attained full maturity of development, and if the desert cover the larger part of its surface, while seas have disappeared, as seems to be the case on Mars, the probability is that the planet is in decrepitude, considered as an abode of living organisms. The reason for this conclusion is that both the atmosphere and the hydrosphere (water envelope) tend to disappear as the planet grows older.

With regard to the earth, some authorities hold that it already shows signs of growing desiccation, while others think that its deserts are not expanding or increasing in number. At the worst, they have not yet assumed such proportions as to constitute a serious threat.

But deserts, scientifically considered, are among the most interesting features of a planet. They are stigmata, or blemishes, characteristic of a cretain age, like wrinkles and patches on the skin. It is likely that no life-bearing planet in any solary system is without deserts, and we can almost certainly predict in what locations they would be found on a foreign planet of that description.

The Two Belts

This certitude is based on the fact that it is through no mere accident that the earth's deserts are arranged in two roughly outlined belts, one on each side of the equator, and parallel with it. The cause of this condition is that the rotation of the globe creates two great tropical atmospheric currents, the "trade winds," one in each hemisphere, and that associated with these currents there are belts of high barometric pressure which determine the location of zones of excessive evaporation attended by relatively slight precipitation of moisture, because the water vapor drawn up into the air is rapidly borne away into the equatorial rain zone.

Elevated plateaus and mountain ranges produce variations in the exact location of the deserts with regard to distance from the equator, but in a general way the desiccated bands lie as described. A map of the earth on Mercator's projection will show this clearly.

The axis of the great Sahara deserts and those of southwestern Asia lie exactly on the tropic of Cancer, while the dry regions of western America and the deserts of Siberia have been thrown farther north by accidents of the configuration of the crust, but they, too, lie parallel to the line of the equator, and combined with the others make a belt around the globe, which is not evident, of course, where it lies across the oceans. The deserts of the northern hemisphere vastly exceed those of the southern for the plain reason that most of the land area of the globe is north of the equator.

Cold Ones, Too

The deserts of which we have been speaking are the "hot" deserts of the geographers and physiographers. But there is another kind, the "cold" deserts, which are found in high, or polar, latitudes as well as on very lofty plateaus even in the temperate zones. The characteristic feature of a cold desert is sufficiently indicated by its name—it is too cold for the maintenance of much life—but a hot desert might be better described by the word dry. Siberia, owing to its surrounding topography, is cursed with both kinds of desert, the dry on the south and the cold on the north.

The most famous of all the earth's deserts, the Sahara, exceeds the United States in area by about half a million square miles. It covers 3,500,000 square miles. In its centre there is a mountain mass as extensive as the Alps, but having peaks whose greatest height falls below 9,000 feet. In that part of the Sahara called the Lybian desert, which covers about 500,000 square miles, the sands have been driven by the winds into wonderful wave-like ridges, or dunes, which generally do not exceed 70 feet in height, although in places the sands are heaped up to an elevation of 800 feet.
